A number of the members made short addresses congratulating Mr. Hicks on his elevation to the Warden's chair.

LETTER FROM OVERSEAS

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Ham receive the following letter this week from their son, Gunner Kenneth Ham, who has been at Vimy Ridge, Loos, Ypres, Paschendale and at time of writing was at Lens where he was enjoying few days well earned rest.

France, Dec. 23rd, 1917

My Dear Mother and Dad:

Another week has gone by while brings a pretty close to Xmas day 1917. Perhaps a year hence the festival may hold more real meaning than giving for everyone, inasmuch, a peace may be the ruling factor in the world instead of wars. But one can have everything in the army, so why worry!

Your parcel No. 18 has not arrived on the scene yet, but it may come tomorrow in time for Xmas day. I hope so, as then we shall have a little change of menu to celebrate the occasion.

Our period of rest is at an end, and once more we are described in army reports by those significant words 'I act on'. I am once more on an ammunition dump for the present, and glad in one way to be away from the 'smokes' and the trials and tribulations of the section.

Another fellow and I have taken up our winter apartments in the cellar. What once was a spacious mansion. All the visible remains of its beauty now are a heap of bricks and rubbish above our heads, on the terra firma but down below we are quite comfortable. We have an open fireplace, beside which I am writing this letter and also the height of luxurious appointments—being a rickety table, cane chair (minus the cane seat), and two wire beds. So we appear to have dropped into, or dropped down into, fine suite of apartments.

A candle furnishes the usual illumination, and between Fritz and us, we have the usual sounds about our ears. A bright moon out to-night, but it is no friend to the troops, for verily, it shineth brilliantly and lighteth the aerial footsteps of the ever accursed Philistine—to wit the Hun on his errands of bomb dropping, and other wise disturbing the peace of His Majesty's Forces, when they should be in bed asleep.

This cellar presumably was a wine cellar before the war, but its contents have long since disappeared, for there is not even a cork to tell of someone lucky find in its dark recesses. Across the road are the ruins of what used to be a magnificent church, but it is one more example of the Hun's idea of culture, and the only proper way to have a city, which according to his standard, if it belongs to the enemy, is in ruins.

Douglas will probably be in 'blighty' till March, and goodness knows, should get over before that time I see him. Last week I had a splendid Xmas cake from Mrs. McIntosh at Mrs. Carlisle. Weren't they kind! I think of sending me that? I see them a Xmas card from here, and all one or two to others I know 'blighty'.

When out on rest, a number of us went to the concert, the programme of which I am enclosing. It was

STRIKES IN AUSTRIA

Teutonic Rulers Now Face No Difficulties.

The Workers Are Demanding an Immediate Peace and It Is Reported That 100,000 Men in Vienna a Neustadt Have Quit Work Force Hand of Government.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—A general strike is on throughout Austria, according to an Exchange Telegram despatch from Paris Sunday, which reports 100,000 men quitting work in Vienna and Neustadt, closing down all the war factories. The strike is described as openly anti-German and the movement is both political and economic, and especially aimed at securing peace.

Public demonstrations, it is added, have been held in many places, which hostility towards Berlin is trying to force the Austrians to continue the war was voiced.

Reports of strikes and other demonstrations in Austria, which the Austrian Government has permitted to be telegraphed abroad, acquire new significance when read in connection with The Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung's report of five Social meetings held in Vienna last Sunday, January 13. The meetings, which were attended by vast numbers of persons, protested against "robbing the Austrian people of all influence in the peace negotiations by continually postponing the meetings of the Chamber of Deputies and the delegates, and by suppressing all criticism in the press of Germany's and Austria's foreign policy."

The meetings demanded that the peace negotiations at Brest-Litovsk be conducted in a friendly spirit "that the Government reject all efforts towards open or veiled annexations, and that it reject the demand that Russia's border nations' right of self-determination be rendered illusory, and also reject the desire to annex portions of these lands against the will of the inhabitants. The Socialists also demanded that the people of Poland, Lithuania, a Courland be permitted to vote free on the question of the form of the State and their allegiance."

A resolution adopted by the meetings further declared that the Socialists regard the peace program of Lloyd George and President Wilson as a sign that even the enemy nations can be forced by the labor classes to modify their Imperialist aims. The resolution, in conclusion, protested against the "systematic misrepresentation of these utterances in the entire bourgeoisie press and we call on the Governments of the Central Powers to consider the same as an opportunity to offer to all enemy Governments a democratic peace, without annexations or concessions."

Military Party Rules.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The latest German reports which have come through Amsterdam, to which city they were forwarded by the semi-official Wolff Bureau, flatly assert that the military party has gained the victory in the territorial policy of Germany and show what face that country proposes to put on annexations in the east.

Allied Warships Attack German S. marine Base.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—On the western front in France and Belgium military operations apparently increasing all along the line, as compared with those of the past few weeks, when little or no fighting, except artillery duels and minor raids, was carried out.

Entered allied warships have boarded Germany's submarine base at Ostend, on the Northern Belgian coast, while around Ypres, between Lens and St. Quentin, on the Chen Des Dames, on the St. Mihiel sec and north of the Rhine-Marne Car there has been a notable increase in the operations by the infantry. Probabilities are with the return of good weather the expected big battles may take place.

One indication of the probable early commencement of fighting the resumption of aerial activity a large scale, especially on the French front. Saturday the French airmen had a good day operating against the Teutons, sending down eight enemy machines in fights the air.

On the Italian front the fight again has turned to the artillery wings of the opposing sides, the infantry keeping to their trenches except for small patrol engagements. All along the northern front the artillery duels are of a violent character, and at several points along the Piave River a like condition prevails.

BOLSHEVIKI NOW SUPREME.

Has Taken All the Power Into Its Own Hands.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 22.—After an all-night session the Central Executive Committee early Monday morning promulgated a decree abolishing the Constituent Assembly.

"It has killed itself," the committee announced, "by opposing the wishes of the laboring masses represented by the Bolshevik members."

Nikolai Lenine, the Bolshevik Premier, was the chief speaker before the committee and was greeted with tumultuous cheering. He said: "A conflict between the Workmen's and Soldiers' Government and the Constituent Assembly has been growing since the Russian revolution. The February revolution was a political bourgeois revolution, in which the Constitutional Democrats scored success, overthrowing Czarism. In October a social revolution occurred and the working masses, through the Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates, became the sovereign authority."

"By creating the Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates the Russian proletariat brought something new into the revolution. There is no equal in the history of revolution in Western Europe except the Paris Commune. The Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates are not bound by any rules or traditions to the old bourgeois society. Their government has taken all the power and rights into its own hands. The Constituent Assembly is the highest expression of the political ideals of bourgeois society, which are no longer necessary in a Socialist state. The Constituent Assembly will be dissolved. It has not met to-day, and has, in fact, ceased to exist."

The Bolsheviks have not yet announced any plans for a legislative body to replace the Constituent Assembly.

The All-Russian Congress of Soviets is expected to meet to-morrow, but the meeting may be postponed to enable more delegates to attend. This body is looked to as one which will neither declare itself a sovereign body or designate the means for creating one.

CARSON LEAVES CABINET.

Steps Out Owning to Differences on Irish Question.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Sir Edward Carson, Minister without portfolio in the War Cabinet, has resigned. This announcement was made officially Monday night.

The Prime Minister has advised the King to accept Sir Edward Carson's resignation.

The correspondence published shows that Sir Edward's resignation was on the Irish question and had nothing to do with the conduct of the war.

Sir Edward in a letter to the Premier says that when he joined the Cabinet he had no consideration in mind except the prosecution of the war, and had not anticipated that the Irish question would be reopened during the war.

"Subsequently," the letter continues, "when the convention was proposed I used my influence to induce friends to participate in an effort to reach a settlement, but on account of the dual position I held as member of the Government and leader of the Ulster party I felt it incumbent on me to stand aloof from the convention. It, however, is apparent that whatever the issue of the convention, its proceedings may lead to a situation demanding a decision by the Government on grave matters

Military Rules.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The latest German reports which have come rough Amsterdam, to which city they were forwarded by the semi-official Wolff Bureau, flatly assert that the military party has gained

Germany and show what face

...STANDARD IS BOMBARDING.

Allied Warships Attack German Sub- marine Base.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—On the western front in France and Belgium the military operations apparently are increasing all along the line, as compared with those of the past few weeks, when "little or no fighting, except artillery duels and minor raids, was carried out.

Entire allied warships have bombarded Germany's submarine base at Ostend, on the Northern Belgian coast, while around Ypres, between Lens and St. Quentin, on the Chemin des Dames, on the St. Mihiel sector and north of the Rhine-Marne Canal, there has been a notable increase in the operations by the infantry. The probabilities are with the return of good weather the expected big battles may take place.

One indication of the probable early commencement of fighting is the resumption of aerial activity on a large scale, especially on the French front. Saturday the French airmen had a good day operating against the Teutons, sending down eight enemy machines in fights in the air.

On the Italian front the fighting again has turned to the artillery wings of the opposing sides, the infantry keeping to their trenches except for small patrol engagements.
All along the northern front the artillery duels are of a violent character, and at several points along the Piave River a like condition prevails.

The Drink Evil.

en's earnings, according to Lord
D'Abernon, Controller of Liquor Traffic.

Notwithstanding this there has been a decline in drunkenness among women of fully seventy-three per cent., as compared with pre-war figures, and a corresponding decline among women of sickness and morality due to drunkenness.

"The hostile artillery was active chines were brought down. Four of the convention. It, however, is apparent that whatever the issue of the

to a situation demanding a decision of policy in Ireland.

"After anxious consideration, I feel that it would be advantageous policy without my presence.

"I also desire to be entirely unfettered in forming judgment on

ing account both of the supreme duty

Reason When German Socialist Fears Uncle Sam.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 22.—In the Lower House of the Prussian Diet on Saturday, Dr. Franz Mehring, Independent Socialist, made the following enquiry:

"If Canada, with less than nine million inhabitants, has been able to throw a quarter of a million soldiers into Europe, who were not able to fly or swim, what grounds has the Finance Minister for denying to the United States, with 110,000,000 inhabitants, any military capacity?"

Dr. Mehring proceeded to repro-bation the Prussian Finance Minister, Dr. Hertz, for such criticisms, which, he declared, was likely to bring heavy penalties in its train, especially if coupled with empty threats.

The Minister, replying, admitted that he was unable to prove his statement concerning the American army, but was still convinced that it could not come over.

TURK CRUISERS MINED

British Won Victory in Small Naval Action.

Breslau and Goeben, the Former German Vessels Which Have Been Troublesome to the Allies Ever Since the Outbreak of the War, Are Now Out of Business; the Former Was Sunk.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—One hundred and seventy-two members of the crew of the Turkish cruiser Midullu, formerly the German Breslau, were rescued after the action between the British and Turkish forces at the entrance to the Dardanelles, in which the Midullu was sunk; it was officially announced Monday night.

Of the total of 310 men on the British monitor Raglan and the small monitor M-28 lost in the action, there are at present reported 132 survivors, the announcement states.

Both the Breslau and the cruiser Sultan Selim, the former German Goeben, the other Turkish vessel engaged, were mined, the statement adds. The Goeben is now being continuously bombed by British aircraft in the Narrows of the Straits, where she stranded after she hit the mine.

The Goeben and the Breslau, the statement explains, had emerged from the Dardanelles on Sunday morning to attack British naval forces north of the Island of Imbros. After the Raglan and the small monitor had been sunk the Breslau was forced into a British mine-field.

The Goeben headed at full speed towards the Dardanelles, striking a mine near the entrance.

Turkish destroyers coming to the assistance of the Breslau were engaged by British destroyers and driven off.

Viscount Broome, commander of the British monitor Raglan, which was sunk in the engagement with the Turkish cruisers Midullu and Sultan Selim at the entrance to the Dardanelles, is among those saved, according to the Evening News.

Viscount Broome was chief beneficiary under the will of the late Earl Kitchener, of whom he was a nephew, and is heir to the title.

The German ships were in the Mediterranean Sea at the outbreak of the war and fled into the Dardanelles, seeking safety from the British and French warships that sought their destruction.

In the middle of August, 1914, the British Government protested against the German warships being accorded refuge, and Turkey promised that they would be interned, and placed out of commission until the end of the war. Later, however, it was announced that Turkey had purchased the cruisers and given them the new names of Midullu and Sultan Yawuz Selim.

Then followed frequent reports of the activity of the warships in the Black Sea, bombarding enemy land positions and engaging or being engaged by ships of the Russian Black Sea fleet. Although the Turkish and German war statements frequently announced victories for the rechristened Germans, the Russian Admiralty on numerous occasions told of how Russian warships had sent them scurrying from the Black Sea into the Bosphorus, damaged, on fire, and showing the wounds the Russian shells had given them.

Shortly afterwards, however, the Midullu and her colleague again would appear, and the game of hide-and-seek between them and the Russians would go on again until another battle took place, the Turks in the meantime always having been successful in sinking numerous cargo boats, ranging from the smallest fishing craft to goodly-sized steamers.

The latest account of the Sultan Yawuz Selim was in July of last year, when the British Admiralty reported that British airmen had dropped bombs on the vessel during an air attack on the Turkish fleet off Constantinople, in the Golden Horn. Direct hits were observed on the Sultan Yawuz Selim and others vessels, on which explosions occurred and fire broke out. The Admiralty report said the former German cruiser was the centre of attack, and that it was safe to presume she would be out of action for several months as a result of her injuries.

The prediction proved true, as the Sultan Yawuz Selim since then has not been mentioned in any of the reports as being engaged. The last account of the Midullu was in June, 1917, when the Turkish War Office reported that vessel in a successful engagement, together with other Turkish units, in the Black Sea against Russian land positions and small war craft. Authentic statements from Constantinople asserted that after one engagement the Goeben's badly damaged bow was repaired with concrete.

Used Poisoned Candy.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—In the last few days twenty-six conductresses on London omnibuses and trams have been poisoned by eating chocolates or candies given to them while on duty by an unidentified passenger. The girls were incapacitated for work and are being treated in hospitals. It is reported that one is dead and several are seriously ill. In each case the man was the only passenger. He produced a box of chocolates and offered them to the girl conductor. If she ate a few she immediately became very dizzy and had to be taken away.

Troops Were Transferred.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Reuter learns from statements of German deserters regarding the movement of German troops from the East to the West front that it was clear that both the 31st and 42nd Divisions of the German army were transferred from the East front after the armistice had been signed between the Bolshevik Government and the Germans.

NEW FACES IN HOUSE

MANY CHANGES WILL BE NOTED IN PARLIAMENT.

Some of the Men Who Are Going to Ottawa for the First Time Have Already Won Reputations in Local Politics, and Others Have Been Prominent in Social Activities.

WHEN the new Parliament assembles some time in March—it cannot be called before—it will be hardly recognizable. Few of the old timers are left, and there will be at least one hundred and thirty-five new faces. This is particularly true of Ontario and the West.

Of the four Prince Edward Island members only one sat in the old House, J. J. Hughes. Parliament could have lost him without an mourning. He was one of the bore in the last Commons. No man could so quickly empty the House and the press gallery. The three new members are ill without Parliamentary experience.

Although by the present return the Opposition has a majority in Nova Scotia it is expected by the time the deferred elections in Halifax are held and the soldiers' vote is counted that the Government will have a majority. However, under the present line-up there are not many new faces. Hon. W. S. Fielding, a Hance J. Logan, in Cumberland, at both old members with long experience. Robert H. MacKay, who carried Pictou for Laurier, is a member of the local Legislature. There are new faces from Hants and Yarmouth. L. H. Martell, who carried Hants for Laurier, is a brilliant young lawyer, who was formerly in the civil service at Ottawa. E. F. Spinney is the Liberal Unionist who was elected from Yarmouth. Laurier campaign managers have been predicting that Spinney would support him, but this is doubtful. Old members who will be back are A. I. Davidson, of Annapolis; D. D. MacKenzie, George W. Kyte, Dr. Chisholm, Lieut. W. H. Carroll, and Hon. F. B. MacCurdy.

Of New Brunswick's representation of eleven no less than seven were in the last house. F. J. Robidoux, one of the few French-Canadians in the last House, who stood by conscription, was defeated in Kent, a French riding. The French voted solidly against him, and a representative, a Richibucto farmer, Auguste T. Leger, will represent the county. Robidoux's defeat is much regretted. A quiet, unostentatious member, he was growing in the opinion of the House and was marked for advancement. With Hon. J. I. Hazen and Hon. Wm. Pugsley no longer in politics, St. John City has sent two new representatives to Union, both men who stand high in that city. The Conservative-Unionist is R. W. Wigmore, one of the Commissioners of the City of St. John. He is a public man of experience and with splendid administrative ability. He should be a decided acquisition to the House. Stanley J. Elkin, the Liberal-Unionist, is a prominent manufacturer and business man.

Some of the old-timers will be missing when the Ontario roll is called. Those veteran members Hon. David Henderson and Hon. Andrew Broder, will be specially missed from their familiar haunts. They were two of the oldest an-

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

THESE are two great obstacles to preventive medicine which is the real medicine, and these are poverty and ignorance. The greatest cause of poverty—that is, real downright need—is sickness. Sickness causes at least one-third of the world's poverty. Several other things, including alcohol, account for the other two-thirds. Money in the form of higher wages helps in a large measure to obviate poverty and the sickness which oftentimes lies at its door. Perhaps the most noted health man in America at the present time is Colonel (Dr.) Gorgas, the man whose energies succeeded in making the Panama Zone inhabitable by white people. Colonel Gorgas asserts that two diseases carried by the mosquito—Malaria and Yellow Fever—drove the white man from the easy living tropics to the inclement north. His enterprise is allowing him to return there. He asserts further (for, like all public health men, his assertions are marked by personal modesty) that the Panama Canal project was made feasible by the fact that the workmen there were paid the highest wages of any place in America. Money may be an evil. It sometimes is; but it has its good uses. The other great foe of public health advancement is ignorance; that is, want of knowledge of what is good for one's health. This column is out against ignorance of this character.

The writer hopes that everyone who sees this paper will read this column. Especially is it desired that the children shall become interested in it, for they, after all, are the portion of the population who are most susceptible to education. The older ones, more set in their ways, will not perhaps take all that is set down here as gospel—although it more nearly approaches gospel than anything else found outside the Good Book—but the children will perhaps gain some good from it. By the way, there is some good public health advice, none better, found in the Old Testament: read Exodus and Leviticus.

Following an outbreak of communicable disease in a home the room occupied by the sick person should be thoroughly cleaned. The floors should be scrubbed with soap and hot water and the walls wiped with a solution of 1 in 2,000 bichloride of mercury, carbolic acid, or cresol 1 in 20. Unless the circumstances seem to the Medical Officer of Health to demand it the room need not be fumigated by means of formaldehyde or sulphur.

It is well known that outbreaks of diphtheria and other diseases, including scarlet fever, cerebro-spinal meningitis and typhoid fever, are influenced by carriers, persons who are quite well and have not recently suffered from the diseases, but who convey the disease to others. This is very often the reason of the obscure origin of serious epidemics. Numerous investigators have found diphtheria bacilli in the throat and nose of from one to four per cent. of healthy persons. Among the scarlet fever patients in the Willard Parker Hospital, New York, 4.5 per cent. of diphtheria carriers were found, and in one-half of these the bacteria

Following an outbreak of communicable disease in a home the room occupied by the sick person should be thoroughly cleaned. The floors should be scrubbed with soap and hot water and the walls wiped with a solution of 1 in 2,000 bichloride of mercury, carbolic acid, or cresol 1 in 20. Unless the circumstances seem to the Medical Officer of Health to demand it the room need not be fumigated by means of formaldehyde or sulphur.

It is well known that outbreaks of diphtheria and other diseases, including scarlet fever, cerebro-spinal meningitis and typhoid fever, are influenced by carriers, persons who are quite well and have not recently suffered from the diseases, but who convey the disease to others. This is very often the reason of the obscure origin of serious epidemics. Numerous investigators have found diphtheria bacilli in the throat and nose of from one to four per cent. of healthy persons. Among the scarlet fever patients in the Willard Parker Hospital, New York, 4.5 per cent. of diphtheria carriers were found, and in one-half of these the bacteria were virulent, as shown by reaction in guinea pigs. No local treatment is entirely satisfactory in exterminating the germs of the disease. Some of the persistent cases were those with deep pockets in the tonsils, and the complete removal of these tonsils usually give satisfactory results. Carriers of diphtheria bacilli do not themselves contract diphtheria, but they are a common source of trouble to others.

QUESTIONS.

A.B.: Q.—How shall I get rid of vermin in a child's head?

A.—The hair should be washed with soap and warm water, dried, and then soaked in gasoline or coal oil with a towel tied about the head over night. Next morning the hair should be carefully combed with a fine-tooth comb dipped in acetic acid or vinegar to remove the nits. One, or at most two treatments like this will usually clean the matter up.

Q.—How much Antitoxin is safe to give to a child seven years old?

A.—The quantity of Diphtheria Antitoxin required for any case depends upon the severity of the case. There is practically no danger from any quantity from 5,000 to 30,000 units. Don't hesitate to use plenty of it. It is supplied free by the Provincial Board of Health.

Troops Were Transferred.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Reuter learns from statements of German deserters regarding the movement of German troops from the East to the West front that it was clear that both the 31st and 42nd Divisions of the German army were transferred from the East front after the armistice had been signed between the Bolshevik Government and the Germans.

The Exhibition Prospers.

The Canadian National Exhibition directors have a pleasant surprise in store for Finance Commissioner Bradshaw of Toronto. At a meeting of the board the interim financial statement for the fourth war year Exhibition was presented and reflected a most prosperous condition of affairs. As a result of the Confederation year operations the Exhibition will present to the city the largest check in the history of the association.

It was estimated early in the year that the surplus would amount to $35,000 and this sum was placed in the civic estimates. It develops, however, though the actual figures have not been announced, that the sum to be turned over will nearly double the original estimate and will exceed the surplus of any previous year, not excepting 1913, the record year.

In the latter year Mr. John G. Kent, who was then president, paid over to the city $62,000. This year Mr. Kent will make another record when with President Marshall he will place in Mr. Bradshaw's hands a cheque for an even larger amount within the next couple of days.

In addition to presenting the city with a record-sized cheque the Exhibition has also met the expense out of earnings in 1917 of heavy maintenance and improvement charges usually borne by the city.

The amount which the city will receive this year is all the more remarkable when compared with 1913, because of the fact that in the record year there was an attendance of 1,699,600, against only 917,000 in 1917. As compared with the 1916 Exhibition substantial increases in revenue will be shown in every department.

Following are the amounts paid over to the city in cash by the Exhibition in the past fourteen years up to 1916, not including large sums spent annually by the association in permanent improvements:

1903.....	$31,029.55
1904.....	30,000.00
1905.....	28,062.47
1906.....	26,962.47
1907.....	26,515.92
1908.....	47,586.00
1909.....	37,959.32
1910.....	42,058.13
1911.....	36,131.38
1912.....	40,024.16
1913.....	62,580.87
1914.....	27,572.51
1915.....	45,116.13

Returns for the Soldiers.

Despatches announcing the results of the polling of the recent Dominion elections at Bramshott Camp were carried to Canadian headquarters in London, distant some forty miles, by relays of two teams, the runners consisting of some twenty men. The road race was organized by the Y. M. C. A. Each soldier ran two miles, a lorry following picking up the runners, so that all arrived together in London, where the message was delivered to General Turner.

A "Y" representative met and took the men for a bath and clean-up, and afterwards they had dinner and a theatre evening, returning to camp in the morning by lorry. The champion teams participating were given this run in lieu of an award of medals for previous victories.

that city. The Conservative-Unionist is R. W. Wigmore, one of the Commissioners of the City of St. John. He is a public man of experience and with splendid administrative ability. He should be a decided acquisition to the House. Stanley Elkin, the Liberal-Unionist, is a prominent manufacturer and business man.

Some of the old-timers will miss when the Ontario roll called. Those veteran members Hon. David Henderson and Hon. Andrew Broder, will be specially missed from their familiar haunts. They were two of the oldest and two of the most popular members of Parliament. They have both retired on account of ill health. Two other figures familiar at Ottawa who will not be in the Commons, are the new Senators John Fisher and W. H. Bennett.

It is interesting to recall that away back in 1892 there were here at the same time five bye-elections which were bitterly contested. The Conservatives carried all five and five new members made the new session their bow to the House. A few remained in politics for near twenty-five years and became influential members of the Commons. They were Sir Sam Hughes, Mr. A. F. Maclean, Mr. W. B. Northrup, Mr. W. H. Smith, and Mr. W. H. Bennett. Despite the many and rapid changes in the political arena, all five sat in the last Parliament. However, on three will be found in the next Parliament: Sir Sam, Mr. Smith, who carried his riding, South Ontario, over a thousand, and Mr. Maclean.

Oliver Wilcox will be missed from North Essex. He was a very popular member. He died recently of cancer of the stomach. New Ontario has an almost complete new representation. Hon. Frank Corne is the only old member back. C. Boyce, in West Algoma, resigned to go on the railway commission, and J. J. Carriek, in Port Arthur at Thunder Bay, retired in the interests of Union.

Only four members in the last House were defeated. They are Mr. W. E. German, in the new riding, Welland; George Elliott, in West Middlesex; Dr. Steele, in South Perth; and W. F. Weichel, in North Wainfleet. Mr. German's defeat marks the passing of another veteran from the political field. He was first a candidate in 1891, but was unseated. He sat in the Ontario Legislature and was elected in 1900 for the Dominion. He has sat continuously since Welland. The other three members defeated first entered politics in 1911.

The two Renfrews will be represented by new members. In North Renfrew Colonel Gerald White is the convention. He has sat for the seat since 1906, when he was elected at a bye-election, when only 27, succeeded his father, the late, Hon. Peter White. The new member, Col. MacKie, a son of the old antagonist of Hon. Mr. White, a former member for two Parliaments in South Renfrew. Hon. George Graham is succeeded by Isaac Paton, a Laurier candidate. Mr. Graham is another figure missing from the new Parliament, thanks to his efforts to ride both horses. He tried to get a nomination as a Unionist candidate, but failed to get a convention. Towards the end of the campaign he supported on the platform what he called conscription Laurier candidates.

The West will have an almost complete new representation. Only three of the former Manitoba members will be in the new House, Hon. Arthur Meighen, Robert Cruise, and Dr. Molloy. There will be some new blood from Manitoba which should have considerable influence on the deliberations. George W. Allan, a

In the middle of August, 1914, the British Government protested against the German warships being accorded refuge, and Turkey promised that they would be interned, and acted out of commission until the end of the war. Later, however, it was announced that Turkey had purchased the cruisers and given them the new names of Midullu and Sultan awuz Selim.

Then followed frequent reports of the activity of the warships in the Black Sea, bombarding enemy land positions and engaging or being engaged by ships of the Russian Black Sea fleet. Although the Turkish and German war statements frequently mentioned victories for the re-armed Germans, the Russian admiralty on numerous occasions told of how Russian warships had met them scurrying from the Black Sea into the Bosphorus, damaged, on fire, and showing the wounds the Russian shells had given them.

Shortly afterwards, however, the Midullu and her colleague again could appear, and the game of hide-and-seek between them and the Russians went on again until another battle took place, the Turks the meantime always having been successful in sinking numerous cargo ships, ranging from the smallest fishing craft to goodly-sized steamers.

The latest account of the Sultan awuz Selim was in July of last year, when the British Admiralty reported that British airmen had dropped bombs on the vessel during a night attack on the Turkish fleet at Constantinople, in the Golden Horn. Direct hits were observed on the Sultan awuz Selim and others, on which explosions occurred and fire broke out. The Admiralty report said the former German cruiser was the centre of attack, and that was safe to presume she would be out of action for several months as a result of her injuries.

The prediction proved true, as the Sultan awuz Selim since then has often been mentioned in any of the reports as being engaged. The last count of the Midullu was in June, 17, when the Turkish War Office reported that vessel in a successful engagement, together with other Turkish units, in the Black Sea against Russian land positions and naval war craft. Authentic statements from Constantinople asserted that after one engagement the Goeben's badly damaged bow was repaired with concrete.

Used Poisoned Candy.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—In the last few days twenty-six conductresses on London omnibuses and trams have been poisoned by eating chocolates and candies given to them while on duty by an unidentified passenger. The girls were incapacitated for work and are being treated in hospitals. It reported that one is dead and several are seriously ill. In each case a man was the only passenger. He produced a box of chocolates and offered them to the girl conductor. If she ate a few she immediately became very dizzy and had to be taken away.

NEW FACES IN HOUSE

MANY CHANGES WILL BE NOTED IN PARLIAMENT.

Some of the Men Who Are Going to Ottawa for the First Time Have Already Won Reputations in Local Politics, and Others Have Been Prominent in Social Activities.

WHEN the new Parliament assembles some time in March—it cannot be called before—it will be hardly recognizable. Few of the old-timers are left, and there will be at least one hundred and thirty-five new faces. This is particularly true of Ontario and the West.

Of the four Prince Edward Island members only one sat in the old House, J. J. Hughes. Parliament could have lost him without any mourning. He was one of the bores in the last Commons. No man could so quickly empty the House and the press gallery. The three new members are all without Parliamentary experience.

Although by the present returns the Opposition has a majority in Nova Scotia it is expected by the time the deferred elections in Halifax are held and the soldiers' vote is counted that the Government will have a majority. However, under the present line-up there are not many new faces. Hon. W. S. Fielding and Hance J. Logan, in Cumberland, are both old members with long experience. Robert H. MacKay, who carried Pictou for Laurier, is a member of the local Legislature. There are new faces from Hants and Yarmouth. L. H. Martell, who carried Hants for Laurier, is a brilliant young lawyer, who was formerly in the civil service at Ottawa. E. K. Spinney is the Liberal Unionist who was elected from Yarmouth. Laurier campaign managers have been predicting that Spinney would support him, but this is doubtful. Old members who will be back are A. L. Davidson, of Annapolis; D. D. MacKenzie, George W. Kyte, Dr. Chisholm, Lieut. W. H. Carroll, and Hon. F. B. McCurdy.

Of New Brunswick's representation of eleven no less than seven were in the last House. F. J. Robidoux, one of the few French-Canadians in the last House, who stood by conscription, was defeated in Kent, a French riding. The French voted solidly against him, and a new representative, a Richibucto farmer, Auguste T. Leger, will represent the county. Robidoux's defeat is much regretted. A quiet, unostentatious member, he was growing in the opinion of the House and was marked for advancement. With Hon. J. D. Hazen and Hon. Wm. Pugsley no longer in politics, St. John City has sent two new representatives for Union, both men who stand high in that city. The Conservative-Unionist is R. W. Wigmore, one of the Commissioners of the City of St. John. He is a public man of experience and with splendid administrative ability. He should be a decided acquisition to the House. Stanley E. Elkin, the Liberal-Unionist, is a prominent manufacturer and business man.

Some of the old-timers will be missing when the Ontario roll is called. Those veteran members, Hon. David Henderson and Hon. Andrew Broder, will be specially missed from their familiar haunts. They were two of the oldest and

C, the new member for South Winnipeg, is one of the leaders of the Manitoba bar. R. C. Henders, the new member for MacDonald, is one of the leaders of the Grain Growers. He is an able speaker and a man of wide and original thinking. Dr. Whidden, president of Brandon Baptist College, is the new member for Brandon. He is a man of outstanding ability who will be watched at Ottawa. Mr. R. L. Richardson, the aggressive editor of The Winnipeg Tribune, who sought the hard seat of Springfield, is returning to Ottawa after over twenty years' absence. He was elected in 1896 as a Liberal for Lisgar. Later he was defeated in a bye-election.

Saskatchewan also, which Calder has succeeded in sweeping, despite hard opposition, will have but three old members: Mr. J. G. Turfitt, in Assiniboia; Mr. Levi Thompson, Qu'Appelle, and Mr. Thomas MacNutt in Saltcoats. They were all former supporters of Laurier, who deserted him on the issue of conscription. Of the new members the most outstanding is Mr. James Wilson, of Saskatoon, a pioneer of that city who has been one of the leaders in every public-spirited cause in that ambitious centre for a decade. Dr. Cowan, the successful Unionist in Regina, is a Mayor of the city and prominent for years in southern Saskatchewan politics.

Three former members of Alberta will also be back: W. A. Buchanan, Lethbridge; Dr. M. Clark, Red Deer, and James Douglas, Strathcona. Mr. W. H. White, who ran as a Laurier candidate in Victoria, may be elected, but it is doubtful after the soldier vote is counted. General Griesbach, who has defeated Hon. Frank Oliver in Edmonton West, is one of the most brilliant of the young Canadian Generals who have brought such lustre to the name of Canada in France. He is only 38. He took the famous 49th Battalion of Edmonton to the front and is now Brigadier-General, Calgary, despite the retirement of R. B. Bennett, will be again well represented at Ottawa. T. M. Tweedie, the new Unionist member for Calgary West, is one of the most popular lawyers in Alberta. He is almost as brilliant an orator as Bennett. He sat in the Alberta Legislature for two terms, where he was recognized as the main fighting force of the Opposition. He is able, energetic, and aggressive. Major D. E. Rodman, who has carried East Calgary, is a returned soldier, who is a prominent lawyer. He is one of the few veterans of the war who will sit in the next Parliament.

Four of the old House will be found in the new Parliament from British Columbia. They are Hon. Martin Burrell, Herb Clements, R. F. Green, and H. H. Stevens. The best known of the new members is Dr. S. F. Tolmie, who was Dominion Live Stock Commissioner for the West and retired to run. He is a recognized authority on live stock, and his wide experience will be of the greatest value to the new Parliament.

Stopped Most Terrible Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Denison, Texas. — "After my little girl was born two years ago I began suffering with female trouble and could hardly do my work. I was very nervous but just kept dragging on until last summer when I got where I could not do my work. I would have a chill every day and hot flashes and dizzy spells and my head would at-most burst. I got where I was almost a walking skeleton and life was a burden to me until one day my husband's step-sister told my husband if he did not do something for me I would not last long and told him to get my medicine. So he got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking the first three doses I began to improve. I continued its use, and I have never had any female trouble since. I feel that I owe my life to you and your remedies. They did for me what doctors could not do and I will always praise it wherever I go."—Mrs. G. O. LOWERY, 419 W. Monterey Street, Denison, Texas.

If you are suffering from any form of female ills, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and commence the treatment without delay.

AMONG THE DEAD.

Young Cadet Lay in Halifax Morgue for Three Days.

To lie from Thursday morning, the time of the Halifax disaster, until the following Saturday, when he recovered sufficiently to grasp the feet of a passing attendant in the morgue and so was taken from the rows of dead, was the awful experience of C. P. O. William King, of Halifax Naval College. At the time of the explosion King, along with others on the shore, was watching the smoking Imo for 20 minutes, in which, as he says now, "I could have cleared the college had I known she was laden with explosive, and not simply a freighter." Then there came an awful crushing sensation, and King knew nothing more until the covering was lifted from him in the morgue and he heard a voice among many say, "No, that is not him."

This was the first sensation of consciousness that returned to him. He was too weak to speak, nor was he able to see, for he has since been totally blind, one eye, the left, he felt lying on his cheek and later pushed into the socket when strength came to him. The right eye is recovering and there are hopes that it will be strong. A wound in the throat almost severed his windpipe, another was at the back of the neck, and others about the face. He was in full dress uniform at the time, and was so covered with blood that he was absolutely unrecognizable as he lay in the morgue.

Three times he was approached in the morgue after he became conscious. The first was when he heard the voices, the second was when footsteps sounded but did not come near, the third was after a longer

The critical moments of the first battle of Ypres occurred between two and three o'clock on the afternoon of October 31, 1914. The First Division were holding the Menin-Ypres road and Gheluvelt, and they were hurled backwards by a tremendous attack. According to all human reckoning it seemed that the position was lost. No military commander could have reasonably counted upon the division rallying and holding its ground against such an overwhelming onslaught. It is generally believed that Lord French when he received the news made up his mind to retire, as, of course, prudence and foresight alike required.

But then the miraculous happened. Brigadier General Charles Fitz-Clarence decided to attempt the recapture of Gheluvelt. There was an open gap of 500 yards between the village and the South Wales Borderers, who had not retired and were holding on magnificently. General Fitz-Clarence ordered the Second Worcesters to fill the gap. Their charge across open ground under Major Hankey was a brilliant affair. Never perhaps was the rifle fire of troops advancing under a rain of shrapnel so accurate and so well controlled. Here was the test of training. It is probably no exaggeration to say that no troops in the world could have been found to do this exact thing except men of the first British expeditionary force—the most highly trained troops, we believe, that ever took the field in the history of war. The Second Worcesters were in open order; they had none of that sense of solidity and support which seems to mean so much to the German soldier, and yet they drove the German line back. Gheluvelt was retaken and the position was saved.

We have heard it said that when some few days later the Second Worcesters were withdrawn from the line to rest there was a remarkable illustration of the intensity of Lord French's appreciation of what had been accomplished. We do not know whether the story is true, but as it is creditable to every one concerned, and as (whether true or not) it suggests in a very human way the full significance of what happened on October 31, 1914, we shall risk the indiscretion of telling it. It is said that Lord French felt that he must express his personal thanks to the Second Worcesters, but that when he saw the shattered and exhausted fragments of the battalion in front of him his emotion was so deep that he could not trust himself to speak. He deputed a subordinate to convey to them the message he had prepared, but this officer also found that emotion held him inarticulate. Silence and the language of looks had to be the only message, and perhaps it was the best. We hope the story is true.—London Spectator.

Help From China.

Evidence of practical sympathy with the Halifax sufferers came all the way from China. The Governor-General received a cablegram from Walter Long, Secretary for the Colonies, stating that Hong Kong had given ten thousand pounds "with expressions of deep sympathy of the colony in the terrible disaster which has befallen them."

The Governor-General has also received a cablegram from the Governor of British Guiana that the combined court there has voted five thousand dollars in aid of the sufferers. The cablegram adds: "The people of British Guiana have heard with greatest concern of disaster which has befallen Halifax and desire to convey their sympathy."

The first was when he heard the voices, the second was when footsteps sounded but did not come near, the third was after a longer time and he had been able to turn on his hands and knees. How long this might have been he has no idea, for his first real consciousness came to him in the hospital.

Speaking to his brother-in-law afterwards, he said "that as he came to life he prayed, 'Now, God, you have helped me before, Help me now to help myself, and when the footsteps approached I grabbed in the dark and caught the ankles of a man. He gave an awful shout. I asked him to help me to a lavatory, which he did, and then he left me, and that is the last I have known of him. Then I went off into unconsciousness again. When I came around I thought of how I came in, and found the door out. Just there a nurse met me. She gave a shriek and said, 'My what a sight you are,' but she did not leave me. She got help and got me to the hospital." He is now slowly recovering in Camp Hill Hospital.

The Beer of Borneo.

Beer as made by the natives of Sarawak, in the north-western region of Borneo, varies in its ingredients according to the different tribes who make it, the most intoxicating being that made by the Bisaiyans of Limbang. These people make their beer by boiling rice, adding yeast, crushed wild chili, and a large lump of wood ash. This is all put into a jar till the jar is two-thirds full, and covered over with leaves which are held down with bamboo supports; water is poured on till the jar is full, and the beer is then ready for drinking. The drinking is performed by pushing bamboo tubes down to the bottom of the jar and then sucking up the liquid. So that no one shall have more than his fair proportion at a time, a system of floats is arranged whereby the amount of drink consumed by each man is registered.

Expert Testimony.

The black sheep of the regiment stood before his commanding officer charged with being drunk. He stoutly denied the offence, and there was only one witness, a sergeant, to prove it. Still, the records showed eleven previous convictions for the same offence.

"You are a hardened and habitual offender," said the captain, sternly; "I can't take your denial against the sergeant's word."

The prisoner then turned to the sergeant witness, and asked, "Have you ever been drunk?"

On receiving an emphatic negative, he turned to the captain again. "Sergeant says I was drunk. I say I wasn't. I ask yer, sir, which is like to be right, 'im wot's 'ad no experience of wot being' drunk is, or an 'ardened and 'abitual like me?"

TEACHERS' SALARIES.

95 per cent. of the children of Ontario receive all of their education in the public school alone. How important then that the work of the public school should be well done.

Public school teachers of Napanee have received no increase since the war started.

Prices have advanced till the public school teachers find they cannot supply even necessities on their present salary. How can they provide for illness or old age?

The average salary for lady teachers in Ontario in 1915 was $613.00 (counting permits and third class teachers). We were even then below the average.

School Boards in surrounding towns and cities are all paying public school teachers higher salaries than in Napanee.

Kingston has fixed her maximum at $850, and Napanee prices for groceries and clothing and hardware, etc., are as high as in the cities.

If teachers are troubled over the where-with-all to meet necessary expenses, their working ability cannot be up to par.

Name any other class of workers who are working for the same remuneration as before the war.

Are Napanee public school teachers not worthy of the same consideration as teachers in other counties, or as other public servants right in our own town?

These teachers are (nearly all) paying taxes into our town treasury, taking an active part in supporting our charities and standing by our own town loyally. Stand by the teachers and enable them to continue this work.

If $900 were a fair salary four or five years ago, it is certainly not a fair salary now.

Women's Patriotic Service and Red Cross Work

Through the "U. E. Loyalist" Chapter, I.O.D.E.

The Belgian Relief Committee wish to acknowledge with most appreciative thanks very generous donations of money for this work from the following friends both far and near. From Mr. W. H. Preston, of Pueblo, Colorado, from J. E. Eakins, and Mrs. Murney Parks—also $8.00 in Christmas envelopes for the suffering Belgian Children, sent in from Strathcona through Mrs. Findlay.

Miss Alice Preston's class in the East Ward Public School refrained from buying candy in order to help the unfortunate Belgian children, and in consequence were able to send in a greatly appreciated offering.

We desire to thank Miss Janet Preston, of Pueblo, Colorado, very sincerely for a generous donation for our Red Cross work—also Mrs. John Walsh, Mrs. F. S. Richardson and Mrs. Murney Parks for generous gifts of money for Halifax relief, to be applied for the Home for Unclaimed Children, established there since the great disaster by members of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire. Do not overlook our euche party in aid of the same object, to take place by kind permission of the I.O.O.F. in the Harshaw Block, in their beautiful and commodious rooms on the evening of February 6th. Do not miss Thursday afternoons at our work-room, where we can always meet congenial companions, and help with the various forms of war, and other relief work.

Ouch ! ! ! ! ! This kind of rough talk will be heard less here in town if people troubled with corns will follow the simple advice of this Cincinnati authority, who claims that a few drops of a drug called freezone when applied to a tender, aching corn or hardened callus stops soreness at once, and soon the corn or callus dries up and lifts right off without pain.

He says freezone dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding skin. A small bottle of freezone will cost very little at any drug store, but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Millions of American women will welcome this announcement since the inauguration of the high heels. If your druggist doesn't have freezone tell him to order a small bottle for you.

"Possibilities that there would be many appeals of the exemptions granted by the appeal courts was hinted at yesterday by one of the military representatives. It was also said that the law would probably be changed at the next session of Parliament. The measures taken by the authorities at the present time, it was felt, were not as productive of men as they should be, and it was stated that even more strict moves would be made. There are too many exemptions granted by the judges, according to the military representatives, and the result will be the re-examination of all the classes. It was also hinted that the second class might be called much sooner than expected.

Rheumatism Overcome By Tanlac as Garbett is Able to Work Again.

"It's thirty-five miles from here to Schornburg, where I live, but I'd go that far for Tanlac any day," said James Garbett in an interview at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Berry 14 Jillsion avenue, Toronto, recently. Mr. Garbett has lived in Schornburg for more than thirty years, owns a valuable farm near the city, is also noted as a hunter and trapper, and is highly respected by all who know him. Continuing his statement, Mr. Garbett said:

"My daughter has been telling me for a long time that Tanlac was the best medicine in the world and now I know it for myself. For the past two or three years I have been bothered with rheumatism which got so bad during the past summer and fall that I couldn't do a bit of work. In fact, I was so crippled up I just had to hobble around. Every muscle and bone in my body seemed to be affected and my left arm hurt so bad I couldn't raise my hand to comb my hair. My shoulders and sides, hip and legs and back were all right stiff and hurt so bad when I got up out of my chair the folks could hear me groan all over the house. The leader and muscles of my legs cramped and hurt so I could hardly walk and kept me from getting my rest at night. My joints just ached and pained and kept me in agony nearly all the time.

"All my neighbors know how I suffered and now they can see how Tanlac has helped me. I always believe in the old fashioned remedies but now I have to admit that Tanlac has them all beat. I have hardly finished my second bottle yet and I have never seen anything knock out rheumatism like it has mine. Being well along in years, I didn't expect it to help me but I can see the biggest difference in the world. I haven't been bothered by that pain in my muscle and bones since I started on it and my stiffness is fast leaving me. My legs don't cramp any more, my back don't hurt and I rest well at night. I'm able to go to work now and when I get back home I'm certain going to take some Tanlac with me. In fact, one of the reasons I'm here is to get Tanlac."

MR. MAGRATH'S COMPLAINT.

Fuel Controller C. A. Magrath is somewhat indignant over the announcement of W. F. O'Connor, cost of living commissioner, that the critical fuel situation in Canada is mainly due to hoarding of coal by individuals. It is going to make it harder for him to induce the American fuel controller to send more across the border, he says.

Possibly it will make some difference; possibly it is time that the American controller's eyes were opened to the true state of affairs. Because of coal shortage in parts of the United States, great plants have had to close down, thousands of people are going cold, and in New York and other large cities apartment houses are only heated for part of the day. There have been reports of more widespread suffering from cold on the American side than on the Canadian. In the light of these facts is it justifiable for Canada's controller to deceive his confrere in the United States into sending more coal here and depriving our southern neighbors?

The path of least resistance seems to have been the one chosen by Magrath. He does not deny Mr. O'Connor's charge, but complains that it gives the show away. Mr. Magrath was not appointed simply as fuel importer, but as controller. If he had taken his duties seriously, there would have been no hoarding worth mentioning. He had the power to arrange with dealers throughout the country details of a plan to prevent anyone getting more than his share, but he neglected his opportunities. Even when the charge of hoarding is made by such an authority as Mr. O'Connor, the fuel controller does not order a strict investigation of the truth of the assertion and adopt measures to take from those who have and supply those who have not, but contents himself with complaining. This accusation concerning persons who have many months' supplies in their cellars is no new one, coming as a surprise to the controller; it has been made in nearly every town and city. Had attention been given to it before and action taken, Mr. O'Connor's report would have been unnecessary.

It may be unpleasant and requiring some work to act upon the tip given, but it is the controller's duty. So far, the general opinion is that he has been a dismal failure in his office. It is not too late to show that intentions are good.

IMPORTANCE OF GOOD SEED GRAIN

It has been estimated that if first class seed were sown on all farms the crop of the country would be increased by fifty per cent. This cannot be verified definitely, but the annual loss caused by the use of seed other than the best is beyond all doubt surprisingly great.

The present situation, with the world scarcity of cereals and the shortage of farm labour, urgently demands that the best possible selection be made from our 1917 grain crop for seed. This will bring about a great increase in production with a minimum increase in labour requirements; the proper procedure is for each individual farmer to make sure now, in early winter, that he has pure seed of strong vitality for his spring sowing.

The energy and vitality of seed can be ascertained only by a germination test. Mere inspection is untrustworthy. Grain of very good weight and excellent appearance is frequently found to have a considerable part killed outright, and the rest so weakened that the young plants are starved with too little energy to withstand bad weather, or give a high yield. A poor crop is often said to have been the result of adverse conditions when if strong seed had been sown a satisfactory yield would have been secured.

Tests may be made at home, or will be done free of charge, up to twenty-five in number for one person, at the Seed Laboratory, Ottawa. For home tests seeds are counted and sown in boxes or cans of soil, and kept in a warm place. For all tests, care should be taken to have them thoroughly representative of the bulk lot. When sent to the Seed Laboratory samples should be enclosed in strong manilla envelopes or cotton bags, and where more than one of a certain kind is sent, each should be marked with a distinguishing number. From two to four ounces of grain is sufficient for the germination test. Samples should be addressed to the Seed Commissioner, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. They are carried free in the mails if not exceeding twelve ounces in weight.

 fuel controller to send more oss the border, he says.
 ossibly it will make some differ-e; possibly it is time that the erican controller's eyes were open-to the true state of affairs. Bese of coal shortage in parts of United States, great plants have to close down, thousands of peo-are going cold, and in New York other large cities apartment ses are only heated for part of day. There have been reports of e widespread suffering from cold the American side than on the adian. In the light of these facts
 t justifiable for Canada's control-to deceive his confere in the ted States into sending more coal and depriving our southern bors?
 he path of least resistance seems have been the one chosen by Math. He does not deny Mr. O'Con-
 's charge, but complains that it s the show away. Mr. Magrath not appointed simply as fuel inter, but as controller. If he had en his duties seriously, there would e been no hoarding worth men-
 ing. He had the power to ar-ge with dealers throughout the ntry details of a plan to prevent one getting more than his share, he neglected his opportunities.
 n when the charge of hoarding is le by such an authority as Mr.
 onnor, the fuel controller does not er a strict investigation of the th of the assertion and adopt mea-es to take from those who have l supply those who have not, but tents himself with complaining.
 s accusation concerning persons o have many months' supplies in ir cellars is no new one, coming a surprise to the controller; it been made in nearly every town l city. Had attention been given it before and action taken, Mr.
 onnor's report would have been necessary.
 t may be unpleasant and requirne work to act upon the tip given, it is the controller's duty. So

IMPORTANCE OF GOOD SEED GRAIN

It has been estimated that if first class seed were sown on all farms the crop of the country would be increased by fifty per cent. This cannot be verified definitely, but the annual loss caused by the use of seed other than the best is beyond all doubt surprisingly great.

The present situation, with the world scarcity of cereals and the shortage of farm labour, urgently demands that the best possible selection be made from our 1917 grain crop for seed. This will bring about a great increase in production with a minimum increase in labour requirements.
 The proper procedure is for each individual farmer to make sure now, in early winter, that he has pure seed of strong vitality for his spring sowing.

The energy and vitality of seed can be ascertained only by a germination test. Mere inspection is untrustworthy. Grain of very good weight and excellent appearance is frequently found to have a considerable part killed outright, and the rest so weakened that the young plants are started with too little energy to withstand bad weather, or give a high yield. A poor crop is often said to have been the result of adverse conditions when if strong seed had been sown a satisfactory yield would have been secured.

Tests may be made at home, or will be done free of charge, up to twenty-five in number for one person, at the Seed Laboratory, Ottawa. For home tests seeds are counted and sown in boxes or cans of soil, and kept in a warm place. For all tests, care should be taken to have them thoroughly representative of the bulk lot.
 When sent to the Seed Laboratory samples should be enclosed in strong manilla envelopes or cotton bags, and where more than one of a certain kind is sent, each should be marked with a distinguishing number. From two to four ounces of grain is sufficient for the germination test. Samples should be addressed to the Seed Commissioner, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. They are carried free in the mails if not exceeding twelve ounces in weight.

EDITOR OF THE EXPRESS.
 Sir:—
 We herein wish to express our appreciation and thanks to the gentleman signing himself An X Farmer to a letter in your last week's issue, for the manner in which he so thoughtfully and wisely expresses opinion of the present and future conditions that are sure to prevail after the war. Regarding the prices of grain and other products. Re canned goods, they are one of the common necessary commodity in the market to-day, and will be in demand. Dominion Canners have clearly placed their proposition to the farmer in their notice in local papers. We therefore trust that they will interest themselves enough in the Napanee factory to grow the necessary produce so that the plant will be in full operation this season.
 Thanking you for space.

 On off evenings I am arrayed (like the W. K. Horse Show (in what they call our "walking-out" uniform—everything, from Sam Browne belt to leather-faced, very tight riding-ly, and a cocky little cap over one ear. I still insist that my style of beauty fits the fatigue uniform best, but there are others who are flattering enough to induce me to go out on the streets in the thing.

Here's somewhat the way I look,
 and, what's more, that's the way I feel I look.

We spend most of our time doing parade—which is a technical term meaning we are kept tab on every hour of the day. They are very strict, and you must "sir" an officer always. On inspection, the other morning, a chap in one of the flights was found without his overcoat.

"Where's your overcoat?" snaps
 the officer.

"I haven't got one," murmurs the chap.

"Haven't got one WHAT? pointedly from the officer.

"One overcoat," answers the chap
 meekly.

What the officer says after that isn't the kind of thing you can set down cold in a letter, even if you dared. But, anyway, I know now that Gilbert and Sullivan got that line in "Pinafore" out of the official navy jest book.

It was our sergeant-major, a great old Scotsman, who hauled up a man for not being properly dressed on parade. ".....," says he (I never knew what the blanks in Captain Bruce Bairnsfather's captions meant till I met the British ser-

Town Council

Council Chambers,
January 21st, 1918.

Council met in regular session on Monday evening, Mayor J. E. Robinson presiding.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed.

Present—Reeve Graham, and Councillors Steacy, Stevens, Lowry, Boyes and MacGregor.

A communication was received from Geo. A. Hartman, saying that on January 10th his horse became frightened at men sawing wood in front of M. Maker's theatre, and ran away, damaging his cutter to the extent of $10.00. He was putting his bill into the Council, and if not paid, he would proceed to collect.

Referred to the Town Solicitor for his opinion and a report.

A petition was presented from many of the business men of Napanee, humbly petitioning the Council to pass a resolution asking that all places of business be not opened until 9.30 o'clock in the morning and closed at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, except Saturday nights, when the said places of business will be closed at 9 o'clock in the evening.

Moved by Reeve Graham, seconded by Coun. MacGregor:—

Whereas there is a fuel shortage in the Town of Napanee, which is likely to become more aggravated as the winter season advances, and

Whereas it has been thought advisable to circulate a petition among the business men asking the Council to pass a resolution in respect to shortening the hours of keeping places of business open, and

Whereas it is deemed advisable to grant the prayer of the said petition:

Now, therefore, be it resolved that all retail stores be requested, in order that fuel may be conserved, to keep their places of business open for the purpose of serving customers for and during the hours hereinafter mentioned, namely:—

(a) All retail stores to open at 9.30 a.m.

(b) Pool rooms to open at 10 a.m.

(c) Dry goods, clothing, boots and shoes, hardware and jewellery stores to close at 5 p.m., and on Saturday nights at 9 p.m.

(d) Grocers to close at 7 p.m., and on Saturday nights at 9 p.m.

(e) Confectioners and fruit stores to close at 9 p.m.

(f) Pool rooms to close at 10 p.m.

(g) Barber shops to close at 7 p.m. and at 10 p.m. on Saturday nights.

And further, that all retail merchants be requested to loyally observe the same, until this resolution is rescinded by reason of the fuel shortage being relieved. Carried.

On motion copies of the above resolution were ordered printed and given to every storekeeper in Napanee.

Coun. Steacy presented a report in reference to some changes about to be made in the matter of heating the fire hall and also for drying the hose.

Coun. MacGregor, Chairman of the Market and Police Committee, presented the following report:

We have investigated the matter of the town hall, market tolls, and town scales. We find that combining the positions of town hall and fire hall caretaking with town market tolls and scales, is not a satisfactory arrangement, and we would recommend that the collection of market tolls and care of the scales be as one position, and that the caretaking of the town hall and fire hall be a matter of consideration for the Town Property Committee.

In compliance with the duties prescribed in the Mayor's address, pertaining to the Market and Police Committee, we have waited on the Chief of Police and asked him to prohibit all immoral practices and swearing in public places. As a committee, we are anxious to co-operate and enforce the law impartially.

The Committee also presented the following report made to them by F. W. Barrett, Chief of Police:—

Chief Constable's Office,
January 17th, 1918.

To the Mayor and Council of the Municipal Corporation of the Town of Napanee.

Gentlemen,—I have the honour to submit this report of the work of your Police Department for the year 1917.

The number of cases brought before the Police Court during the year is as follows:—

Appeared by summons.....	48
Appeared by warrant.....	3
Arrested without warrant.....	33
Total.....	84

Fines and fees.....	$503 82
Sale of unclaimed goods.....	$ 15 75

Eleven transients were given a protection in the Police cells during the year, this being the smallest number for a number of years.

Lost and stolen property, to the value of $1,994.6, was recovered by this Department during the year including two automobiles, three horses and buggies, 1 horse, four bicycles, two watches and a number of other articles.

The following amounts have been paid to the Town Treasurer, under by-laws, for whose enforcement the Police Department are responsible:

Billiard licenses.....	$ 427 00
Butchers' licenses.....	60 00
Livery licenses.....	115 00

While the revenue from fines and fees is larger by nearly fifty per cent. than in other years, the number of Police Court cases is smaller, this being the result of the enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act and am looking forward to a further decrease of offences during the coming year, also decrease in the amount of fines and fees. The amount collected under the Dog By-law is larger than usual, this being accounted for by the action of the Council of last year, by increasing the amount of the dog tax, it also materially reduced the number of dogs in town.

While the Ontario Temperance Act has agreeably lessened the number of arrests, the amount of work thrust upon every Police Department as a result of the European War

Could deliver the same in town, already cut for furnace use for about $11.25 or $11.50 per cord—that would be four pieces to a stic of wood. In cord wood lengths h would deliver at $9.50 a cord.

The consideration of this question was left over until next meeting of Council.

Coun. Boyes, Chairman of the Town Property Committee, reported recommending that the town hall be not rented, owing to fuel shortage until the matter came before the Council; that suitable locks be placed on the town hall and basement. Report adopted.

A By-law was passed, appointing Fred. J. Vandalstine Chief Fire Engineer of the Town of Napanee, for the year 1918, and C. W. Conway Assistant Fire Engineer for the year 1918, at a salary of $40.00 to the Chief Engineer and $35.00 to the Assistant Engineer.

The discussion of the Mayor's address, laid over from last meeting of Council, was taken up clause by clause and discussed.

Moved by Reeve Graham, seconded by Coun. Steacy, that the Treasurer be instructed to place before the Council on the first meeting night of each month, a statement of payments made for each committee, together with vouchers for their payments. Vouchers not required for those payments that are passed by Council. Also showing total amount charged to each Committee and amounts still standing to the credit. Carried.

Moved by Reeve Graham, seconded by Coun. MacGregor, that whereas there have been appeals made to the Municipal Councils and the citizen of the County from time to time on behalf of the British Red Cross, Belgian Relief, Y. M. C. A. overseas work, etc., etc.

Whereas considerable money has been raised by sections of the County, but a general response has not been made throughout the County, and whereas it has been thought that the best and most equitable method of raising funds for these several worthy and patriotic purposes is for the County Council to make suitable provisions, and make the grants on behalf of the citizen of the whole County, and

Whereas in order thereto the County Council should be memorialized; its first session, in order that when the County estimates are prepared sufficient sum may be placed in the estimates to take care of said grants.

Now, therefore, be it resolved that the Municipal Corporation of the Town of Napanee, that the Reeve of the Town of Napanee do request the County Council during its January

The amount collected under the Dog By-law is larger than usual, this being accounted for by the action of the Council of last year, by increasing the amount of the dog tax, it also materially reduced the number of dogs in town.

While the Ontario Temperance Act has agreeably lessened the number of arrests, the amount of work thrust upon every Police Department as a result of the European War more than counterbalances it, as all the regulations of the Food Controller, Fuel Controller, Orders-in-Council relating to war measures, as well as the enforcing of the Military Service Act, are additional measures to be enforced by the Police.

Reading through the foregoing report will not convey to the reader a full report as to the work of this Department, as much of ordinary Police work is preventative, therefore uncommunicative. I would like to draw the attention of your Honourable body to the fact that this department has adopted the finger print method of criminal identification, and already good results have been recorded, also that your Police Department has become identified and affiliated with the Chief Constables' Association of the Dominion of Canada, whose primary object is greater co-operation among the Police Forces of the Dominion, thereby insuring a greater measure of protection to life and property. In addition to the ordinary Police work the task of enforcing the Truancy Act and the Public Health Act is placed upon this Department.

I would suggest for your consideration the advisability of passing by-laws for the purpose of controlling the sale of tobacco and cigarettes, the licensing of restaurants and eating houses, junk dealers and second hand shops within the Corporation, the enacting of such measures would increase the revenue of the town.

The morals of the town will compare very favourably with any similar sized town in the Province. There is always a certain class of offenders in every locality who have very little respect for law and order and whose offences help to swell the total of the Police Court cases. Taking in the general situation we are fairly well satisfied, for as long as human nature is what it is, so long will there be crime and criminals and under present conditions the elimination of crime is impossible. I would assure your Honourable body that it is the aim and object of this Department to enforce impartially all measures of correction and prevention, to secure the maximum amount of safety to the life and property of every citizen.

In conclusion I desire to thank the members of last year's Council for their many kindnesses and consideration shown this Department during the year.

Respectfully submitted,
Your obedient servant,
F. W. BARRETT,
Chief Constable

A London paper received in Canada contains the following:

In kilts and sporrans, a grey-headed, robust Canadian soldier, attached to one of the Canadian Scottish regiments, was charged at Westminster with assaulting a young man at South Kensington.

Prosecutor, incapacitated by heart disease from military service, said defendant, a stranger, went up to him and called him a d—d German, at the same time pushing him off the kerb and striking him over the head with a stick, exclaiming, "I'll show you how to fight!"

Defendant said he was due back for France the following morning, and the fact was that he was disgusted and depressed by the sight of so many young men in London taking no part in the war, when elderly men like himself—he was over 54—had sacrificed position and comfort to fight for the Mother Country. He had left his farm of 320 acres in Canada, and thought everyone should do his bit.

"A most admirable sermon," remarked the magistrate, "but, unfortunately you selected a wrong example."

Defendant said he apologized most sincerely to prosecutor. The apology was accepted, and defendant was bound over.

To Make Victoria Crosses.

A bronze gun captured by the Canadian troops overseas from the Germans will be used by the British authorities for the manufacture of Victoria Crosses. The gun in question was captured by the 58th Canadian Infantry Battalion, and Sir George Perley, in a letter to General Mewburn, Minister of Militia, states that he has agreed to its being turned over to the British authorities. Sir George says that it has been in the past the invariable practice to manufacture Victoria Crosses from bronze guns captured from the enemy.

Arctic Football.

Football is a favorite amusement with Eskimos of all ages. The football is a small round ball made of sealskin and stuffed with reindeer hair. GIRLS! WHITEN YOUR SKIN WITH LEMON JUICE

Make a beauty lotion for a few cents to remove tan, freckles, sallowness.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply you with three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Squeeze the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle, then put in the orchard white and shake well. This makes a quarter pint of the very best lemon skin whitener and complexion beautifier known. Massage this fragrant, creamy lotion daily into the face, neck, arms and hands and just see how freckles, tan, sallowness, redness and roughness disappear and how smooth, soft and clear the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless, and the beautiful results will surprise you.

Deer Roam Exmoor.

Even the war's needs have scarcely touched Exmoor. The uplands remain an unspoiled heirloom of the past—a place where the wearied brain of the city worker finds that rare rest of open space swept by the free sea wind, where in every direction the eye ranges over unadulating wild country fading, gold upon gold, in to the blue horizon, beyond which even on the clearest days there rise only faint cloudy outlines of the highest hills of distant countries.

Thus, sometimes with glasses you may trace the shape of the Malvern heights; but over all the rest of the invisible landscape you know that the air comes to your lungs fresh and unbreathed by men.

On this free table land it is appropriate that the wild red deer should have found in our far south-west one of the last strongholds in Britain. Over a space twenty-five miles in width and many more in depth the antlered stags still fight for their harems as their ancestors fought before men had learned to fashion weapons of rough stone. They still belloat out their prehistoric challenge, and the silent hinds gather dutifully to the summons as of old.

When the stags shall have dropped their antlers for the year, and the hinds, conscious of coming maternity, shall be stealing apart to secret places amid the heather and bracken, where they will lay their precious speckled burdens down, will the whirlwind of war be over and our men be coming home again? There has been next to no hunting on Exmoor for many months now, only just enough to keep the stags down, and the meets have been ill attended.

Visitors have been few, and the dwellers on Exmoor have had other things to think about. Man here easily becomes merged in his surroundings, only one of the slow-moving specks that the buzzard, circling aloft on level pinions and fan-spread, barred tail, looks down upon. Unweariedly, with scarcely a wing flap, the great bird patrols the sky, and to the listener below its slurred cry of all the vowels, "a-e-i-o-u," seems to emphasize the solitude of the scene.

So, too, the croak of the rare raven, perched on some inaccessible summit above a precipitous gorge which the human pedestrian scales far below, sounds like the forbidding voice of the guardian spirit of the docks.

ment of the Ontario Temperance Act and am looking forward to a further decrease of offences during the coming year, also decrease in the amount of fines and fees. The amount collected under the Dog By-law is larger than usual, this being accounted for by the action of the Council of last year, by increasing the amount of the dog tax, it also materially reduced the number of dogs in town.

While the Ontario Temperance Act has agreeably lessened the number of arrests, the amount of work thrust upon every Police Department as a result of the European War more than counterbalances it, as all the regulations of the Food Controller, Fuel Controller, Orders-in-Council relating to war measures, as well as the enforcing of the Military Service Act, are additional measures to be enforced by the Police.

Reading through the foregoing report will not convey to the reader a full report as to the work of this Department, as much of ordinary Police work is preventative, therefore uncommunicative. I would like to draw the attention of your Honourable body to the fact that this Department has adopted the finger print method of criminal identification, and already good results have been recorded, also that your Police Department has become identified and affiliated with the Chief Constables' Association of the Dominion of Canada, whose primary object is greater co-operation among the Police Forces of the Dominion, hereby insuring a greater measure of protection to life and property. In addition to the ordinary Police work the task of enforcing the Truancy Act and the Public Health Act is placed upon this Department.

I would suggest for your consideration the advisability of passing by-laws for the purpose of controlling the sale of tobacco and cigarettes, the licensing of restaurants and eating houses, junk dealers and second hand shops within the Corporation, the enacting of such measures would increase the revenue of the town.

The morals of the town will compare very favourably with any similar sized town in the Province. There is always a certain class of offenders in every locality who have very little respect for law and order and whose offences help to swell the total of the Police Court cases. Failing in the general situation we are fairly well satisfied, for as long as human nature is what it is, so long will there be crime and criminals and under present conditions the elimination of crime is impossible. I would assure your Honourable body that it is the aim and object of this Department to enforce impartially all measures of correction and prevention, to secure the maximum amount of safety to the life and property of every citizen.

In conclusion I desire to thank the members of last year's Council or their many kindnesses and consideration shown this Department during the year.

Respectfully submitted,

Your obedient servant,

F. W. BARRETT,

Chief Constable.

The Ford Saves the Hay and Oats the Horses Eat

IT HAS been estimated that five acres of land are required to maintain one horse for a year, and that the same five acres would produce nearly enough food for two people. If 50,000 Canadian farmers each replaced one horse with a Ford, 250,000 acres would be added to the Nation's source of food supply and enough extra food made available to feed 100,000 people.

Just think what a great service this means to the country at the present time and the benefit to the farmers from the sale of food produced on this acreage.

A Ford car also saves the farmer a week or more of valuable time each year, which can be used for further productive work. The Ford travels three times as fast as a horse and rig—costs less to run and keep, and is far easier to take care of. With labor so scarce and high priced, time means money; so do not delay in getting your Ford.

But one day some one of the women—I do not know which one—filled a gourd with blackberries and carried it to the cave. In no time all the women were carrying berries and nuts and roots in the gourds. The idea, once started, had to go on. Another evolution of the carrying receptacle was due to the women. Without doubt some woman's gourd was too small, or else she had forgotten her gourd. But be that as it may, she bent two great leaves together, pinning the seams with twigs, and carried home a bigger quantity of berries than could have been contained in the largest gourd.

So far we got and no farther in the transportation of supplies during the years I lived with the folk. It never entered anybody's head to weave a basket out of willow withes. Sometimes the men and women tied tough vines about the bundles of ferns and branches that they carried to the caves to sleep upon. Possibly in ten or twenty generations we might have worked up to the weaving of baskets. And of this one thing is sure—if once we wove withes into baskets the next and inevitable step would have been the weaving of cloth. Clothes would have followed, and with covering our nakedness would have come modesty.

Thus was momentum gained in the younger world. But we were without this momentum. We were just getting started, and we could not go far in a single generation. We were without weapons, without fire and in the raw beginnings of speech. The device of writing lay so far in the future that I am appalled when I think of it.

Even I was once on the verge of a great discovery. To show you how fortuitous was development in those days let me state that had it not been for the gluttony of Lop Ear I might have brought about the domestication of the dog. And this was something that the Fire People who lived to the northeast had not yet achieved. They were without dogs. This I knew from observation. But let me tell you how Lop Ear's gluttony possibly set back our social development many generations.

Well to the west of our caves was a great swamp, but to the south lay a stretch of low, rocky hills. These were little frequented for two reasons. First of all, there was no food there of the kind we ate, and next, those rocky little teeth into my arm, and I dropped him in the suddenness of the hurt and surprise. The next moment he had scurried inside.

Lop Ear, struggling with the second puppy, scowled at me and intimated by a variety of sounds the different kinds of a fool and a bungler that I was. This made me ashamed and spurred me to valor. I grabbed the remaining puppy by the tail. He got his teeth into me once, and then I got him by the nape of the neck. Lop Ear and I sat down and held the puppies up and looked at them and laughed.

They were snarling and yelping and crying. Lop Ear started suddenly. He thought he had heard something. We looked at each other in fear, realizing the danger of our position. The one thing that made animals raging demons was tampering with their young. And these puppies that made such a racket belonged to the wild dogs. Well we knew them, running in packs, the terror of the grass eating animals. We had watched them following the herds of cattle and bison and dragging down the calves, the aged and the sick. We had been chased by them ourselves more than once. I had seen one of the folk, a woman, run down by them and caught just as she reached the shelter of the woods. Had she not been tired out by the run she might have made it into a tree. She tried and slipped and fell back. They made short work of her.

We did not stare at each other longer than a moment. Keeping tight hold of our prizes, we ran for the woods. Once in the security of a tall tree, we held up the puppies and laughed again. You see, we had to have our laugh out, no matter what happened.

CHAPTER VII.

We had not yet discovered fire. Our evolution into cooking animals lay in the tight rolled scroll of the future.

Red Eye was an atavism. He was the great discordant element in our horde. He was more primitive than any of us. He did not belong with us, yet we were still so primitive ourselves that we were incapable of a co-operative effort strong enough to kill him or cast him out. Rude as was our social organization, he was, nevertheless, too rude to live in it. He tended always to destroy the horde by his unsocial acts. He was really a reversion to an earlier type, and his place was with the Tree People rather than with us who were in the process of becoming men.

He was a monster of cruelty, which is saying a great deal in that day. He beat his wives—not that he ever had more than one wife at a time, but that he was married many times. It was impossible for any woman to live with him, and yet they did live with him, out of compulsion. There was no gain-saying him. No man was strong enough to stand against him.

Often do I have visions of the quiet hour before the twilight. From drinking place and carrot patch and berry swamp the folk are trooping into the open space before the caves. They dare linger no later than this, for the dreadful darkness is approaching, in which the world is given over to the carnage of the hunting animals, while the forerunners of man hide tremblingly in their holes.

There yet remain to us a few minutes before we climb to our caves. We are tired from the play of the day, and the sounds we make are subdued. Even the cubs, still greedy for fun and antics, play with restraint. The wind from the sea has died down, and the shadows are lengthening with the last of the sun's descent. And then suddenly from Red Eye's cave breaks a wild screaming and the sound of blows. He is beating his wife.

At first an awed silence comes upon us. But as the blows and screams continue we break out into an insane gibbering of helpless rage. It is plain that the men resent Red Eye's actions, but they are too afraid of him. The blows cease, and a low growling dis-

need to look. We knew the voice only too well. The rubbish had descended upon Red Eye.

We crouched down in the cave in consternation. A minute later he was at the entrance, peering in at us with his inflamed eyes and raging like a demon. But he was too large. He could not get in to us. Suddenly he went away. This was suspicious. But all we knew of folk nature he should have remained and had out his rag. I crept to the entrance and peeped down. I could see him just beginning to mount the bluff again. In one hand he carried a long stick. Before I could divine his plan he was back at the entrance and savagely jabbing the stick in at us.

His thrusts were prodigious. The cave could have disemboweled us. We shrank back against the side wall where we were almost out of range. But by industrious poking he got in now and again—cruel, scraping jab with the end of the stick that rake off the hide and hair. When we screamed with the hurt he roared his satisfaction and jabbed the harder.

I began to grow angry. I had temper of my own in those days and pretty considerable courage, too, a belt it was largely the courage of the cornered rat. I caught hold of the stick with my hands, but such was his strength that he jerked me into the crevice. He reached for me with his long arm, and his nails tore my flesh as I leaped back from the clutch and gained the comparative safety of the side wall.

He began poking again and caught me a painful blow on the shoulder. Beyond shivering with fright and yelling when he was hit Lop Ear did nothing. I looked for a stick with which to jab back, but found only the end of a branch an inch through and foot long. I threw this at Red Eye. It did no damage, though he howled with a sudden increase of rage at my daring to strike back. He began jabbing furiously. I found a fragment of rock and threw it at him, striking him on the chest.

This emboldened me, and, besides, was now as angry as he and had no all fear. I ripped a fragment of rock from the wall. The piece must have let me state that had it not been for the gluttony of Lop Ear I might have brought about the domestication of the dog. And this was something that the Fire People who lived to the northeast had not yet achieved. They were without dogs. This I knew from observation. But let me tell you how Lop Ear's gluttony possibly set back our social development many generations.

Well to the west of our caves was a great swamp, but to the south lay a stretch of low, rocky hills. These were little frequented for two reasons. First of all, there was no food there of the kind we ate, and, next, those rocky hills were filled with the lairs of carnivorous beasts.

But Lop Ear and I strayed over to the hills one day. We would not have strayed had we not been teasing a tiger. Please do not laugh. It was old Saber Tooth himself. We were perfectly safe. We chanced upon him in the forest early in the morning, and from the safety of the branches overhead we chattered down at him our dislike and hatred. And from branch to branch and from tree to tree we followed overhead, making an infernal row and warning all the forest dwellers that old Saber Tooth was coming.

We spoiled his hunting for him, anyway. And we made him good and hungry. He snarled at us and lashed his tail, and sometimes he paused and stared up at us quietly for a long time, as if debating in his mind some way by which he could get hold of us. But we only laughed and pelted him with twigs and the ends of branches.

This tiger-baiting was common sport among the folk. Sometimes half the horde would follow from overhead a tiger or lion that had ventured out in the daytime. It was our revenge, for more than one member of the horde, caught unexpectedly, had gone the way of the tiger's belly or the lion's. Also by such ordeals of helplessness and shame we taught the hunting animals to some extent to keep out of our territory. And, then, it was funny. It was a great game.

And so Lop Ear and I chased Saber Tooth across three miles of forest. Toward the last he put his tail between his legs and fled from our gibing like a beaten cur. We did our best to keep up with him, but when we reached the edge of the forest he was no more than a streak in the distance.

I don't know what prompted us, unless it was curiosity, but after playing around awhile Lop Ear and I ventured across the open ground to the edge of the rocky hills. We did not go far. Possibly at no time were we more than a hundred yards from the trees. Coming around a sharp corner of rock (we went very carefully, because we did not know what we might encounter) we came upon three puppies playing in the sun.

They did not see us, and we watched them for some time. They were wild dogs. In the rock wall was a horizontal fissure, evidently the lair where their mother had left them and where they should have remained had they been obedient. But the growing life, that in Lop Ear and me had impelled us to venture away from the forest, had driven the puppies out of the cave to frolic. I know how their mother would have punished them had she caught them.

But it was Lop Ear and I who caught them. He looked at me, and then we made a dash for it. The puppies knew no place to run except into the lair, and we headed them off. One rushed between my legs. I squatted and grabbed him. He sank his sharp teeth back. They made short work of her.

We did not stare at each other longer than a moment. Keeping tight hold of our prizes, we ran for the woods. Once in the security of a tall tree, we held up the puppies and laughed again. You see, we had to have our laugh out, no matter what happened.

CHAPTER VII.

AND then began one of the hardest tasks I ever attempted. We started to carry the puppies to our cave. Instead of using our hands for climbing, most of the time they were occupied with holding our squirming captives. Once we tried to walk on the ground, but were treed by a miserable hyena, who followed along underneath. He was a wise hyena.

Lop Ear got an idea. He remembered how we tied up bundles of leaves to carry home for beds. Breaking off some tough vines, he tied his puppy's legs together and then, with another piece of vine passed around his neck, slung the puppy on his back. This left him with hands and feet free to climb. He was jubilant and did not wait for me to finish tying my puppy's legs, but started on. There was one difficulty, however. The puppy wouldn't stay slung on Lop Ear's back. It swung around to the side and then on in front. Its teeth were not tied, and the next thing it did was to sink its teeth into Lop Ear's soft and unprotected stomach. He let out a scream, nearly fell and clutched a branch violently with both hands to save himself. The vine around his neck broke, and the puppy, its four legs still tied, dropped to the ground. The hyena proceeded to dine.

Lop Ear was disgusted and angry. He abused the hyena and then went off alone through the trees. I had no reason that I knew for wanting to carry the puppy to the cave except that I wanted to, and I stayed by my task. I made the work a great deal easier by elaborating on Lop Ear's idea. Not only did I tie the puppy's legs, but I thrust a stick through his jaws and tied them together securely.

At last I got the puppy home. I imagine I had more pertinacity than the average folk, or else I should not have succeeded. They laughed at me when they saw me lugging the puppy up to my high little cave, but I did not mind. Success crowned my efforts, and there was the puppy. He was a plaything such as none of the folk possessed. He learned rapidly. When I played with him and he bit me I boxed his ears, and then he did not try again to bite for a long time.

I was quite taken up with him. He was something new, and it was a characteristic of the folk to like new things. When I saw that he refused fruits and vegetables, I caught birds for him and squirrels and young rabbits. (We folk were meat eaters as well as vegetarians, and we were adept at catching small game.) The puppy ate the meat and thrived. As well as I can estimate, I must have had him over a week. And then, coming back to the cave one day with a nestful of young hatched pheasants, I found Lop Ear had killed the puppy and was just beginning to eat him. I sprang for Lop Ear—the cave was small—and we went at it tooth and nail.

And thus, in a fight, ended one of the earliest attempts to domesticate the dog. We pulled hair out in handfuls and scratched and bit and gouged. Then we sulked and made up. After that we ate the puppy. Raw? Yes.

The sounds we make are subdued. Even the cubs, still greedy for fun and antics, play with restraint. The wind from the sea has died down, and the shadows are lengthening with the last of the sun's descent. And then suddenly from Red Eye's cave breaks a wild screaming and the sound of blows. He is beating his wife.

At first an awed silence comes upon us. But as the blows and screams continue we break out into an insane gibbering of helpless rage. It is plain that the men resent Red Eye's actions, but they are too afraid of him. The blows cease, and a low groaning dies away, while we chatter among ourselves and the sad twilight creeps upon us.

We, to whom most happenings were jokes, never laughed during Red Eye's wife beatings. We knew too well the tragedy of them. On more than one morning, at the base of the cliff, did we find the body of his latest wife. He had tossed her there, after she had died, from his cave mouth. He never buried his dead. The task of carrying away the bodies, that else would have polluted our abiding-place, he left to the horde. We usually flung them into the river below the last drinking place.

Not alone did Red Eye murder his wives, but he also murdered for his wives, in order to get them. When he wanted a new wife and selected the wife of another man, he promptly killed that man. Two of these murders I saw myself. The whole horde knew, but could do nothing. We had not yet developed any government to speak of inside the horde. We had certain customs and visited our wrath upon the unlucky ones who violated those customs. Thus, for example, the individual who defiled a drinking place would be attacked by every outlooker while he who deliberately gave a false alarm was the recipient of much rough usage at our hands. But Red Eye would not touch upon our customs, and we so feared him that we were incapable of the collective action necessary to punish him.

It was during the sixth winter in our cave that Lop Ear and I discovered that we were really growing up. From the first it had been a squeeze to get in through the entrance crevice. This had had its advantages, however. It had prevented the larger folk from taking our cave away from us. And it was a most desirable cave, the highest on the bluff, the safest, and in winter the smallest and warmest.

To show the stage of the mental development of the folk I may state that it would have been a simple thing for some of them to have driven us out and enlarged the crevice opening. But they never thought of it. Lop Ear and I did not think of it either until our increasing size compelled us to make an enlargement. This occurred when summer was well along and we were fat with better forage. We worked at the crevice in spells, when the fancy struck us.

At first we dug the crumbling rocks away with our fingers, until our nails got sore, when I accidentally stumbled upon the idea of using a piece of wood on the rock. This worked well; also it worked woe. One morning early we had scratched out of the wall quite a heap of fragments. I gave the heap a shove over the lip of the entrance. The next moment there came up from below a howl of rage. There was no weighed two or three pounds. With all my strength I slammed it full in Red Eye's face. It nearly finished him. He staggered backward, dropping his stick, and almost fell off the cliff.

He was a ferocious sight. His face was covered with blood, and he was snarling and gnashing his fangs like a wild boar. He wiped the blood from his eyes, caught sight of me and roared with fury. His stick was gone, he began ripping out chunks of crumbling rock and throwing them in at me. This supplied me with ammunition. I gave him as good as he sent and then, for he presented a good target while he caught only glimpses of me as I snuggled against the side wall.

Suddenly he disappeared again from the lip of the cave. I saw him descending. All the horde had gathered outside and in awed silence was looking on. As he descended the more timid ones scurried for their caves. I could see old Marrow Bone tottering along as fast as he could. Red Eye sprang out from the wall and finished the last twenty feet through the air. He landed alongside a mother who was just beginning the ascent. She screamed with fear, and the two-year-old child that was clinging to her released its grip and rolled at Red Eye's feet. Both he and the mother reached for it, and he got it. The next moment the frail little body had whirled through the air and shattered against the wall. The mother ran to it, caught it up in her arms and crouched over crying.

Red Eye started over to pick up the stick. Old Marrow Bone had tottered into his way. Red Eye's great hand shot out and clutched the old man by the back of the neck. I looked to see his neck broken. His body went limp as he surrendered himself to his father. Red Eye hesitated a moment, and Marrow Bone, shivering terribly, bowed his head and covered his face with his crossed arms. Then Red Eye slammed him face downward to the ground. Old Marrow Bone did not struggle. He lay there crying with the fear of death. I saw the Hairless One out the open space beating his chest with his bristling, but afraid to come forward. And then in obedience to some whim of his erratic spirit Red Eye let the old man alone and passed on and covered the stick.

He returned to the wall and began to climb up. Lop Ear, who was shivering and peeping alongside of me, scrambled back into the cave. It was plain that Red Eye was bent upon murder. I was desperate and angry and fairly cool. Running back at

There yet remain to us a few minutes before we climb to our caves. We are tired from the play of the day, and the sounds we make are subdued. Even the cubs, still greedy for fun and antics, play with restraint. The wind from the sea has died down, and the shadows are lengthening with the last of the sun's descent. And then suddenly from Red Eye's cave breaks a wild screaming and the sound of blows. He is beating his wife.

At first an awed silence comes upon us. But as the blows and screams continue we break out into an insane babbling of helpless rage. It is plain at the men resent Red Eye's actions, but they are too afraid of him. The blows cease, and a low growling dis-

need to look. We knew the voice only too well. The rubbish had descended upon Red Eye.

We crouched down in the cave in consternation. A minute later he was at the entrance, peering in at us with his inflamed eyes and raging like a demon. But he was too large. He could not get in to us. Suddenly he went away. This was suspicious. By all we knew of folk nature he should have remained and had out his rage. I crept to the entrance and peeped down. I could see him just beginning to mount the bluff again. In one hand he carried a long stick. Before I could divine his plan he was back at the entrance and savagely jabbing the stick in at us.

His thrusts were prodigious. They could have disemboweled us. We shrank back against the side walls, where we were almost out of range. But by industrious poking he got us now and again—cruel, scraping jabs with the end of the stick that raked off the hide and hair. When we screamed with the hurt he roared his satisfaction and jabbed the harder.

I began to grow angry. I had a temper of my own in those days and pretty considerable courage, too, albeit it was largely the courage of the cornered rat. I caught hold of the stick with my hands, but such was his strength that he jerked me into the crevice. He reached for me with his long arm, and his nails tore my flesh as I leaped back from the clutch and gained the comparative safety of the side wall.

He began poking again and caught me a painful blow on the shoulder. Beyond shivering with fright and yelling when he was hit Lop Ear did nothing. I looked for a stick with which to jab back, but found only the end of a branch an inch through and a foot long. I threw this at Red Eye. It did no damage, though he howled with a sudden increase of rage at my daring to strike back. He began jabbing furiously. I found a fragment of rock and threw it at him, striking him on the chest.

This emboldened me, and, besides, I was now as angry as he and had lost all fear. I ripped a fragment of rock from the wall. The piece must have forth along the neighboring ledge. I gathered a heap of rocks at the cave entrance. Red Eye was now several yards beneath me, concealed for the moment by an outjut of the cliff. As he climbed his head came into view, and I banged a rock down. It missed, striking the wall and shattering, but the flying dust and grit filled his eyes, and he drew back out of view.

A chuckling and chattering arose from the horde that played the part of audience. At last there was one of the folk who dared to face Red Eye. As their approval and acclamation arose on the air, Red Eye snarled down at them, and on the instant they were subdued to silence. Encouraged by this evidence of his power, he thrust his head into view, and by scowling and snarling and gnashing his fangs tried to intimidate me. He scowled horribly, contracting the scalp strongly over the brows and bringing the hair down from the top of the head until each hair stood apart and pointed straight forward.

The sight chilled me, but I mastered my fear, and, with a stone poised in my hand, threatened him back. He still tried to advance. I drove the stone down at him and made a sheer miss. The next shot was a success. The stone struck him on the neck. He slipped back out of sight, but as he disappeared I could see him clutching for a grip on the wall with one hand, and with there was a girl, partly grown, who cautiously regarded us from one of the lower branches. She was evidently my sister, or half sister, rather.

My mother recognized me, but she warned me away when I started to climb into the tree. Lop Ear, who was more cautious by far than I, beat a retreat, nor could I persuade him to return. Later in the day, however, my sister came down to the ground, and there and in neighboring trees we romped and played all afternoon. And then came trouble. She was my sister, but that did not prevent her from treating me abominably, for she had inherited all the viciousness of the Chatterer. She turned upon me suddenly in a petty rage and scratched me, tore my hair and sank her sharp little teeth deep into my forearm. I lost my temper. I did not injure her, but it was undoubtedly the soundest spanking she had received up to that time.

How she yelled and squalled! The Chatterer, who had been away all day and who was only then returning, heard the noise and rushed for the spot. My mother also rushed, but he got there first. Lop Ear and I did not wait his coming. We were off and away, and the Chatterer gave us the chase of our lives through the trees.

After the chase was over and Lop Ear and I had had out our laugh we discovered that twilight was falling.

Even the cubs, still greedy for fun and antics, play with restraint. The wind from the sea has died down, and the badows are lengthening with the last of the sun's descent. And then suddenly from Red Eye's cave breaks a wild screaming and the sound of blows. He is beating his wife.

At first an awed silence comes upon us. But as the blows and screams continue we break out into an insane gibbering of helpless rage. It is plain to the men resent Red Eye's actions, but they are too afraid of him. The blows cease, and a low groaning dies away, while we chatter among ourselves and the sad twilight creeps upon us.

We, to whom most happenings were new, never laughed during Red Eye's life beatings. We knew too well the agony of them. On more than one morning, at the base of the cliff, did we find the body of his latest wife. He ad tossed her there, after she had died, from his cave mouth. He never cried his dead. The task of carrying away the bodies, that else would have blunted our abiding-place, he left to the horde. We usually flung them into the river below the last drinking place. Not alone did Red Eye murder his wives, but he also murdered for his wives, in order to get them. When he wanted a new wife and selected the life of another man, he promptly killed that man. Two of those murders I saw myself. The whole horde knew it could do nothing. We had not yet developed any government to speak of, and the horde. We had certain ones and visited our wrath upon the lucky ones who violated these customs. Thus, for example, the individual who defiled a drinking place could be attacked by every outdoor hill-people who deliberately gave a false alarm was the recipient of much high usage at our hands. But Red Eye walked roughshod over all our customs, and we so feared him that we were incapable of the collective action necessary to punish him.

It was during the sixth winter in our cave that Lop Ear and I discovered that we were really growing up. From the first it had been a squeeze to get through the entrance crevice. This did not have its advantages, however. It prevented the larger folk from taking our cave away from us. And it was a most desirable cave, the highest, the bluffs, the safest, and in winter the smallest and warmest.

To show the stage of the mental development of the folk I may state that would have been a simple thing for me of them to have driven us out and enlarged the crevice opening. But they never thought of it. Lop Ear and I did not think of it either until our increasing size compelled us to make enlargement. This occurred when winter was well along and we were with better forage. We worked the crevice in spells, when the fancy took us.

At first we dug the crumbling rocks away with our fingers, until our nails were sore, when I accidentally stumbled on the idea of using a piece of wood to pry the rock. This worked well; also worked woe. One morning early we scratched out of the wall quite a number of fragments. I gave the heap shove over the lip of the entrance. The next moment there came up from below a howl of rage. There was no weighed two or three pounds. With all my strength I slammed it full into Red Eye's face. It nearly finished him. He staggered backward, dropping his stick, and almost fell off the cliff.

He was a ferocious sight. His face was covered with blood, and he was snarling and gnashing his fangs like a wild boar. He wiped the blood from his eyes, caught sight of me and roared with fury. His stick was gone, so he began ripping out chunks of crumbling rock and throwing them in at me. This supplied me with ammunition. I gave him as good as he sent and better, for he presented a good target.

While he caught only glimpses of me as I snuggled against the side wall. Suddenly he disappeared again. From the lip of the cave I saw him descending. All the horde had gathered outside and in awed silence was looking on. As he descended the more timid ones scurried for their caves. I could see old Marrow Bone tottering along as fast as he could. Red Eye sprang out from the wall and finished the last twenty feet through the air. He landed alongside a mother who was just beginning the ascent. She screamed with fear, and the two-year-old child that was clinging to her released its grip and rolled at Red Eye's feet. Both he and the mother reached for it, and he got it. The next moment the frail little body had whirled through the air and shattered against the wall. The mother ran to it, caught it up in her arms and crouched over it crying.

Red Eye started over to pick up the stick. Old Marrow Bone had tottered into his way. Red Eye's great hand shot out and clutched the old man by the back of the neck. I looked to see his neck broken. His body went limp as he surrendered himself to his fate. Red Eye hesitated a moment, and Marrow Bone, shivering terribly, bowed his head and covered his face with his crossed arms. Then Red Eye slammed him face downward to the ground. Old Marrow Bone did not struggle. He lay there crying with the fear of death. I saw the Hajress One out in the open space beating his chest and bristling, but afraid to come forward. And then in obedience to some whim of his erratic spirit Red Eye let the old man alone and passed on and recovered the stick.

He returned to the wall and began to climb up. Lop Ear, who was shivering and peeping alongside of me, scrambled back into the cave. It was plain that Red Eye was bent upon murder. I was desperate and angry and fairly cool. Running back and

The sight chilled me, but I mastered my fear, and, with a stone poised in my hand, threatened him back. He still tried to advance. I drove the stone down at him and made a sheer miss. The next shot was a success. The stone struck him on the neck. He slipped back out of sight, but as he disappeared I could see him clutching for a grip on the wall with one hand, and with the other clutching at his throat. The stick fell clattering to the ground.

I could not see him any more, though I could hear him choking and strangling and coughing. The audience kept a deathlike silence. I crouched on the lip of the entrance and waited. The strangling and coughing died down, and I could hear him now and again clearing his throat. A little later he began to climb down. He went very quietly, pausing every moment or so to stretch his neck or to feel it with his hand.

At the sight of him descending, the whole horde, with wild screams and yells, stampeded for the woods. Old Marrow Bone, hobbling and tottering, followed behind. Red Eye took no notice of the flight. When he reached the ground he skirted the base of the bluff and climbed up and into his own cave. He did not look around once.

I stared at Lop Ear, and he stared back. We understood each other. Immediately, and with great caution and quietness, we began climbing up the cliff. When we reached the top we looked back. The abiding place was deserted. Red Eye remained in his cave, and the horde had disappeared in the depths of the forest.

We turned and ran. We dashed across the open spaces and down the slopes unimpeded of possible snakes in the grass, until we reached the woods. Up into the trees we went, and on and on, swinging our arboreal flight until we had put miles between us and the caves. And then, and not until then, in the security of a great fork, we paused, looked at each other, and began to laugh. We held on to each other, arms and legs, our eyes streaming tears, our sides aching, and laughed and laughed and laughed.

CHAPTER VIII.

After we had had out our laugh Lop Ear and I curved back in our flight and got breakfast in the blueberry swamp. It was the same swamp to which I had made my first journeys in the world years before, accompanied by my mother. I had seen little of her in the intervening time. Usually when she visited the horde at the caves I was away in the forest. I had once or twice caught glimpses of the Chatterer in the open space and had had the pleasure of making faces at him and angering him from the mouth of my cave. Beyond such amenities I had left my family severely alone. I was not much interested in it, and anyway I was doing very well by myself.

After eating our fill of berries, with two nestfuls of partly hatched quail eggs for dessert, Lop Ear and I wandered circumspectly into the woods toward the river. Here was where stood my old home tree, out of which I had been thrown by the Chatterer. It was still occupied. There had been increase in the family. Clinging tight to my mother was a little baby; also lost my temper. I did not argue, but it was undoubtedly the soundest spanking she had received up to that time.

How she yelled and squalled! The Chatterer, who had been away all day and who was only then returning, heard the noise and rushed for the spot. My mother also rushed, but he got there first. Lop Ear and I did not wait his coming. We were off and away, and the Chatterer gave us the chase of our lives through the trees.

After the chase was over and Lop Ear and I had had out our laugh we discovered that twilight was falling. Here was night with all its terrors upon us, and to return to the caves was out of the question. Red Eye made that impossible. We took refuge in a tree that stood apart from other trees, and high up in a fork we passed the night. It was a miserable night. For the first few hours it rained heavily, then it turned cold, and a chill wind blew upon us. Soaked through, with shivering bodies and chattering teeth, we huddled in each other's arms. We missed the snug, dry cave that so quickly warmed with the heat of our bodies.

SAVE FARM MACHINERY

Word is being sent out to farmers over the country to take special pains this fall and winter to protect their machines. Prices have advanced greatly, and care of farm machinery will pay doubly well this year. So the word is going out—

To put machines under cover as soon as the season's work with them is over.

To go over every machine carefully as soon as opportunity will permit, tighten bolts, replacing broken parts, and oiling carefully to prevent rusting.

To paint machines, as painting lengthens the life of a machine. Bridge paint is suggested as best for iron parts.

New York.—As the current of clothes goes rushing by, one has a strong temptation to reach out and grasp at the straws that are swirling along on the top eddies.

Standing on the bank and watching the brilliant things borne down the stream, one is strongly reminded of an alluring article by Mr. Beebe, the explorer, who has brought back so much that was worth while to the zoological knowledge in America.

Mr. Beebe rests quietly on a bank, as he tells it, by which passes a great, swiftly flowing stream which comes from the heart of the jungle and which is full of mystery and color and splendid exotic life. The stream has caught on its top current parts of this life, and as he studies it, keenly and with knowledge, as it swiftly goes by him, he is able to form in his mind just what the life of that special jungle is. Fauna and flora go by, an opossum with its young, a peculiar kind of snake on a log, bits of wood that explain the tree growth, birds that have been caught in branches and cannot extricate themselves. On, on goes the colorful stream, rushing past the flat mud bank and explaining to the zoologist and ornithologist the entire life and personality of the source from which all these things come.

It is thus in fashions. All the tumult, the revolt, the color, the personality and the life of a country flow by in this semi-annual stream of clothes that are symbols of their sources. And the one who stands on the bank wants to reach out a hand or throw out a grappling pole, as Mr. Beebe did, and bring in for closer observation the peculiar and particular things that can be developed into a whole chapter of interest.

ALL AT HOME SHOULD PREPARE FOR WAR

The first test a man is put through for either war or life insurance is an examination of his water. This is most essential because the kidneys play a most important part in causing premature old age and death. The more injurious the poisons passing through the kidneys the sooner comes decay—so says Dr. Pierce of Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., who further advises all people who are past thirty to preserve the vitality of the kidneys and free the blood from poisonous elements, such as uric acid—drink plenty of water—sweat some daily and take Anuric, double strength, before meals.

An-uric is a discovery of Dr. Pierce, and can be obtained at drug stores. For that backache, lumbago, rheumatism, "rusty" joints, swollen feet or hands, due to uric acid in the blood, Anuric quickly dissolves the uric acid as hot water does sugar. Send 10 cents to Dr. Pierce for trial pkg.

Thorold, Ont.—"I think Anuric is the best I have ever taken. My kidneys had given me trouble for some time. I would suffer from backaches and also swelling of the limbs. I took Anuric and it has entirely cured me of all my backache and has strengthened my kidneys so I feel safe in recommending it to others who suffer."—Mrs. C. A. Clarke, Box 1179.

Toronto, Ont.—"For the last eight years I have suffered with kidney trouble and rheumatism. It began with pains in my back and finally left my back and went down into the foot. It developed into a chronic case. I tried every medicine I could hear of and consulted some good doctors, but still I kept on suffering. About a year ago a friend advised me to give Anuric a trial, and I was happy to say I am today a well man—never feel any traces of my ailment no matter what the weather conditions may be. Anuric is a real kidney medicine in every sense."—E. F. Garrison, 5 Matilda Street.

Sleeves From Every Epoch.

Sleeves, for instance. There is a detail that one wants to catch at with a grappling pole, pull into the bank and study for a week. They are representative of the history of the world. Each epoch seems to have offered a peculiar phase of arm covering for the designers to incorporate into modern costumes.

We have the medieval sleeve which opens after it leaves the elbow and drops in a point to the knee; we have the Chinese sleeve which is roomy enough for all the juggling we care to do; there is the tight sleeve of the Directoire that fits into an overcast armhole and stretches to the knuckle of the hand; there is the Italian sleeve that begins in an armhole that is nearly at the elbow and widens itself out in order that it may drop cloaklike folds to the wrist, where is caught into a band of white velvet or cloth.

There is the sleeve that is slashed from armhole to wrist, as Marguerite and Faust wore it, and there is the Oriental sleeve that is formed from the front edge of a cape and confined to the arm with a bracelet of tulle or jewels.

Another sleeve is merely a brassard, and, of course, it is on an evening gown. There are sleeves taken from the church, from comic opera, from the Round Table, from Wagnerian legends, from the days of Dante and, one might almost add, from the Sultan Sulu. There are sleeves that are not long but arm bands above and below the elbow, to which are caught swinging folds of colored tulle.

Possibly the one garment which the sleeve-mad designers have left untouched in their wild orgy of designing is the street coat which is part a conventional tailored suit. All sorts of liberties are taken with sleeves top coats, because this garment has reached so high on the ladder of fashion that it gets a whack of originality from every designer who wants play with the garment in either a commercial or artistic way.

The short street coat, however, remains conventional. So little has been done with this garment in the line of originality that we begin to believe that the French influence dominates even in this line of American costume. Paris, as you remember, insists that she could do little with the coat suit because her tailors were wielding hand grenades instead of scissors.

Variety in Armholes.

It is not possible to deal with sleeves, in detail or in mass, without taking the armhole into serious consideration. The tailors and dressmakers talk in an interesting manner about this alleged minor part of the costume. It is a pity, one might say in passing, that there are any cutters and fitters who treat it as a minor consideration, for the average woman knows that the skill or awkwardness in cutting an armhole makes or mars the fit of the frock and her individual comfort.

There are few people who can restrain their tempers when the subject of armholes is mentioned, because the extraordinary deficiency of talent in this particular line of dressmaking reaches out into the daily lives of thousands. Let us hope that the cutters of this winter will have learned more than they knew last winter, if they are going to attempt a dozen instead of two varieties.

There is the tight Directoire armhole that hugs the skin so that the fronts of the coat or bodice must be perfectly adjusted in order that they will not rise in waves about the neck.

There is the long, loose Chinese armhole which demands a certain lack of contour in the bodice or jacket.

There is the pear-shaped armhole which extends to the waistline and into which an elbow-length or three-quarter sleeve is usually placed. And, topping the list of comfortable armholes, is the one that belongs to the lining and not to the bodice.

New Type Saves Temper.

If you have had trouble with the fit of your jackets and blouses because of ill-cut armholes, remember that this last type saves temper and tears. When the sleeve is put into the armhole of the lining and the outer material is allowed to drop over it, moving with security and freedom according to the shifting of the shoulders, then you get the best armhole that the American tailors can achieve.

This is the kind that is now in high fashion. It is run well over the top of the arm and up on the lining, in order that there may be no revealing of the inside material when the outer armhole swings to and fro. Some dressmakers use a band of embroidery or soutaching or ornamented cloth of some kind over the lining from the edge of the armhole half way to the front, in order that the effect is good when the outer armhole shifts.

The recognition given by the designers to this armhole in the lining has been the reason for an influx of sleeves made of different material from the gown fabric and also in a different color.

Street frocks of heavy cloth will have long, tight sleeves of braided satin running from shoulder to wrist. They do not make a shocking contrast in color, but depart from the tone of the gown sufficiently to give an artistic touch.

BAD TIME FOR HOG CHOLERA

Nation Cannot Afford Loss Involved in Burning $16-Hogs That Have Died of Cholera.

Burning $16-hogs that have died of cholera is no pleasant duty. The nation, moreover, cannot afford the food losses in this country of more than $82,000,000.

Every hog raiser can aid in preventing so great a loss from cholera recurring this year. Keep the hogs healthy. Clean pens, clean water and right feeding increase the hog's resistance to disease.

Effective control of hog cholera requires more than individual effort. It requires neighborhood co-operation. When cholera appears in a vicinity all hogs on neighboring farms should be promptly treated with serum or serum and virus.

Quarantine of the premises where there is cholera or where herds have been double-treated should be enforced for a reasonable time. Hogs dying from cholera should also be quickly burned or buried, and a thorough disinfection made of the yards and pens before the quarantine is removed.

KEEP FOOD HOPPERS CLOSED

Enormous Amount of Grain Consumed by Rats and Mice Can Be Partially Avoided at Night.

The amount of grain consumed by rats and mice is enormous. This can not be avoided entirely, but there is no reason why rats and mice should have access to the food hoppers at night, and fill themselves up on mash. When the chickens have gone to roost, close the hoppers. If there is a leak, stop it.

Keep deep litter on the floor, and toss it up each night, so that the hens will have no difficulty in scratching in it. This kind of exercise in the morning will be good for them.

Almost every trade and profession has its newspaper or journal looking after its special interests. There are several farm papers, but only one that can be truly called the Farmers' Business Paper. Word was received on Friday last that Pte. Harold Mouck, whose home was at Tamworth, had been killed in action. Pte. Mouck was a nephew of Mr. R. J. Wales and made his home with Mr. Wales while attending school here. After leaving school he was employed by Mr. Wales and afterwards by the late Mr. C. A. Graham. He was 22 years of age and his many friends in Napanee regret his death, though he died doing his duty.

William English, some time ago, on taking a "hike" from Kingston to Napanee, had both his feet frozen and has not been able to do much work since. Asked if he had anything to say, English stated that he wanted his case taken to a high court, with a judge and jury. His home is in Shannonville.

It is to be hoped that the town council will act in the matter and see if it can be made possible for the keeping of hogs within the town limits. All citizens keeping a hog could be made to register the fact with some town official so that at any and all times an inspection could be made to see that everything was kept in a sanitary condition and the privileges thus granted not abused. It would also help to materially increase production of meats, which are so badly needed.

PRIZE WINNERS.

The Lennox Red Yards of which Mr. G. B. Curran is the proprietor, has had a most successful season in winning prizes at the various poultry shows on the continent where he has exhibited birds. His R. C. Rhode Island Pullet has been a particularly good winner. At the Minneapolis show which is one of the largest on the continent, Mr. Curran won as follows:—Pullet won best color red female in show, best rose comb female, sixth cock, tenth hen, second, fifth and tenth cockerel, first, third and sixth pullet. At Ottawa last week The Lennox Red Yards won best bird in show—R. C. R. Red Pullet, first cockerel, second hen, first, third and fourth cockerels; first and third pullet, first hen in rose comb birds. In single comb birds the winnings were: second cockerel, first and second hen, first, second, and fifth cockerels, second and third pullet and first and second hen. Mr. Curran has won prizes wherever he has shown his birds.

FUEL CONSERVATION.

In accordance with a resolution passed at the regular meeting of the Town Council on Monday night all retail merchants will be requested to loyally observe the following regulations regarding the opening and closing of their places of business, in the hope that it will, in a measure, help to relieve the shortage of fuel in Napanee. We have no reason to doubt that, in so far as it is possible, all the merchants will comply with the request:

All retail stores to open at 9.30 a. m.

Pool rooms to open at 10 a. m.
Dry goods, clothing, boots and shoes, hardware, and jewellery stores to close at 5 p. m., and on Saturday nights at 9 p. m.

Grocers to close at 7 p. m., and on Saturday nights at 9 p. m.

Confectioners and fruit stores to close at 9 p. m.

Pool rooms to close at 10 p. m.
Barber shops to close at 7 p. m. and at 10 p. m. on Saturday nights.

It would not be a bad idea if all our citizens would note the above and take every step possible to conserve the fuel, as in a few weeks the situation will be far more serious than at present.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

At the annual meeting of the Napanee Public Library, held in the Boas Room, on Monday, the 14th inst., the following directors were elected, viz. E. R. (heckley, W. P. Deroche, W. Herrington, Dr. Leonard, F. F. Mill, G. Y. Maclean, J. W. Robinson. At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, W. S. Herrington, K.C., was elected President, and F. F. Miller, Secretary and Treasurer.

WOOD SCARCITY.

Owing to the scarcity of coal fuel, wood will be much needed in the next few weeks. Some relief could be afforded the citizens by the cutting down of some of the surplus trees which line the streets of Napanee. This would serve a two-fold purpose, namely, furnishing a certain amount of wood for fuel, and being of considerable advantage to our streets by way of allowing a little sunlight to reach them and thus prevent them from remaining wet for such a long period after a rain. Of course it must be remembered there is a certain course of procedure in this tree cutting business. Neither the private citizens, nor the officials of the town, are allowed to ruthlessly cut down the trees of the streets. However we are satisfied that if any citizen wished to remove a tree or trees, this matter could be amicably arranged by consulting the proper town officials—say the Chairman of the Streets Committee.

THE BEVERLY-McDONALD CO.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

At the annual meeting of the Napanee Public Library, held in the Board Room, on Monday, the 14th inst., the following directors were elected, viz: E. R. (Checkley, W. P. Deroche, W. S. Herrington, Dr. Leonard, F. F. Miller, G. Y. Maclean, J. W. Robinson. At a subsequent meeting of the Directors W. S. Herrington, K.C., was elected President, and F. F. Miller, Secretary-Treasurer.

WOOD SCARCITY.

Owing to the scarcity of coal for fuel, wood will be much needed in the next few weeks. Some relief could be afforded the citizens by the cutting down of some of the surplus trees which line the streets of Napanee. It would serve a two-fold purpose, namely, furnishing a certain amount of wood for fuel, and being of considerable advantage to our streets by way of allowing a little sunlight to reach them and thus prevent them from remaining wet for such a long period after a rain. Of course it must be remembered there is a certain course of procedure in this tree cutting business. Neither the private citizens, nor the officials of the town, are allowed to ruthlessly cut down the trees on the streets. However we are satisfied that if any citizen wished, to remove a tree or trees, this matter could be amicably arranged by consulting the proper town officials—say the Chairman of the Streets Committee.
